PREFACE.

No excuse, such as would be necessary in bringing forward a new collection of Scottish, Irish, or Welsh traditional songs, need be offered in the present instance, since the number of existing collections of English songs is comparatively small, and those which are of real value are either difficult to procure, or they refer only to one district or county. The ordinary albums of English ditties contain but a very small proportion of songs which are strictly speaking traditional; the compositions of Bishop, C. E. Horn, Stephen Glover, and other popular writers of their periods, are nearly always drawn upon more largely than is necessary or desirable. The reason commonly alleged for the inclusion of such things among national melodies, viz., that England is relatively poor in traditional music, breaks down completely upon examination. The large amount of material collected by Chappell does not by any means exhaust the tunes that remain among the English peasantry; nor does the scheme of Popular Music of the Olden Time embrace the songs which seem to have sprung up, no one knows how, within the last century or century and a half.

In the present collection, an attempt has been made to localize, as far as possible, a number of traditional songs of different periods and styles, all—or nearly all—of which are still current among the people. In no case is it asserted that a particular song is the exclusive property of a particular county, nor is it possible from internal evidence to assign any tune to any one county. It is possible, however, to trace, in the songs of one group of counties, a family likeness, and to realize peculiarities of cadences, modulations, and the like, as undoubtedly characteristic of one part of England rather than another. This book does not profess to be a scientific treatise on such points as this, which it would be a useful and interesting work to establish; before this can be done, materials must be collected, and the present volume is only to be regarded as the groundwork of such a study.

No attempt is here made to account for the origin of traditional songs. Chappell, in the work just referred to, the Rev. S. Baring Gould, in his Songs of the West, and other authors, have dealt with the rise of song in England, the history of the minstrels, the accounts of the suppression of music, in common with other arts, by the Puritans, and kindred topics. The fact of the existence of various versions of the same tune is a great difficulty in the way of those who would verify their original form. In the eighteenth century, many hundreds of ballad operas were composed, embodying old and popular airs; and it is important to notice that the same air may occur in several contemporaneous operas, in versions differing widely from each other. The question suggests itself as to how the composers of these operas usually obtained their tunes, and whether these variations arose from their having been handed down by distinct traditions, or from the caprice of the compiler. The origin of tunes of this kind is all the harder to trace since, at the same period, it was customary for musicians to publish old ballad airs with new accompaniments, as their own compositions, and many a "New and Favourite Song, sung at Vauxhall, compos'd by Mr. ————" was doing duty in various forms, and with other words, as the composition of someone else altogether. If such songs as Carey's "Sally in our Alley," or Leveridge's "Black-Eyed Susan" could appear, within a short time of their composition, in such widely different versions as those which are to be found in the song-books of the time, what chance had the tunes, which were no one's property, of being transcribed correctly?

The spread of ballads in England was of course due to the pedlars, who sold ballad-sheets with their other wares. Autolytus was an institution before the time of Shakespeare, and he lingered until late years; only last year (1891), an old carter in Surrey, said that he had one of his songs "off a ballet" a long time since.

The arrangement here adopted, by which an attempt has been made to represent each county of England by at least one song, may seem an arbitrary one, since the county boundaries cannot be expected to confine the music of each shire to itself; it has, however, been indirectly of great service, since it has stimulated effort in places that at first seemed altogether unpromising, and these have sometimes proved to contain more than the average amount of good material. "We are such an unmusical neighbourhood, you will certainly not find anything in this county," is a remark which has often preceded some of the most interesting discoveries; for, strange as it may appear, the districts in which music is largely cultivated among the poorer classes are not those in which the old tunes are most carefully preserved and handed down. It is perhaps natural, after all, that young people brought up on the Tonic Sol-fa system, with all that it involves in the way of fatuous part-songs and non-alcoholic revelries, should turn up their noses at the long-winded ballads or the roystering ale-house songs beloved of their grandparents.

In all parts of the country, the difficulty of getting the old-fashioned songs out of the people is steadily on the increase, and those who would undertake the task of collecting them—and a most engaging pursuit it is—should lose no time in setting to work. In almost every district, the editors have heard tantalizing rumours of songs that "Old So-and-So used to sing, who died a year or two back," and have had in many cases to spend a considerable time in inducing the people to begin singing. It is true that when once started, the greater number of the singers find a good deal of difficulty in leaving off, for they are not unnaturally pleased to see their old songs appreciated by anybody in these degenerate days. Two extracts may be given from letters by persons who were asked to seek out songs:—

"In my latest enterprize I have sustained defeat; I had no idea that our old men were so stupid. No sooner do they see my paper and pencil than they become dumb; in fact, not only dumb, but sulky; so I have abandoned the pursuit."

"I have no one on the place to sit down together happy, and sing 'Life's a Bumper,' or 'The Jolly Full Bottle,' 'The Witches' Glee,' 'The Gipsies' Glee,' and many more; 'While Shepherds watched their flocks by night,' and 'The Virgin Unspotted,' 'The Old Ninth Psalm,' your good father's favourites at Christmas; but there is no voices nor part-singing now at ——; it is all over."

The fact must not be overlooked that "outway songsters" (i.e. out-of-the-way, or excellently good singers), as they are called in the Sussex tongue, not only sang favourite songs, but also actually invented new ones themselves. These songs attained a local celebrity, and often contained allusions, in conventional ballad language, to the name of the squire of the place, or to his "fair lands," and so forth. In Sussex, a composer of this kind lived till quite recently, and his song on a particular pear-tree, in praise of good perry, is still quoted as "wonderful good." The Rev. S. Baring Gould writes that there are also composers of songs in the West of England, but that the words are usually rubbish, and the tunes mere reminiscences. However that may be, it is worth remembering that the habit of inventing songs has not yet died out among the country people.

a fact which may account for the existence of many totally distinct airs for a set of favourite words. That the merit of these compositions is not always so slight as Mr. Baring Gould states, may be assumed from the following account of a collection of Cornish Carols, made by Mr. R. H. Legge, and accidentally destroyed some years ago. He says, in a letter referring to them—

“An interesting feature in connection with these folk-songs was the sacred feelings with which they were regarded; each village had its own store of Carols, and nothing would induce one village to appropriate the Carols of another; thus it will be seen how great the number of these compositions must have been, and still may be, unless the advance of so-called education has led those pleasant country-folk to neglect and lose their heritage. In those of the Carols which I examined after writing them down, I found the harmonization to be wonderfully correct from the present standpoint. Unless modern civilization has spoiled these happy hunting grounds for the musical antiquary, there should still remain a vast amount of unexplored territory which it would even now repay him well to visit.”

The songs of the district here referred to, have been so thoroughly investigated by the Rev. S. Baring Gould, and the results have been so usefully embodied in his Songs of the West, that Cornwall has been treated in the present book as one of the least prolific countries.

As far as the editors are aware, about two-thirds of the contents of the volume have never appeared in print before; of the remainder, by far the largest number have appeared without any form of accompaniment whatever. While to give the tunes without accompaniment is doubtless the most scientific method of preserving the songs, it has the disadvantage of rendering them practically useless to educated singers. The accompaniments have been kept as simple as possible, and in all cases the editors have endeavoured to preserve the character of the period to which they suppose the tune to belong. In one or two cases, where the tune shewed a very remarkable affinity with a song of Schubert's, the accompaniment has been treated more or less in his style; and, in “Cold blows the wind” (p. 34), the resemblance to a certain study of Chopin's in the same key has not been disguised.

Of the songs now printed for the first time, a large number have been taken down from the singers by the editors themselves, but there remain many that have been collected by friends who have kindly helped in the work in various districts of England. After the most strenuous efforts, it has to be acknowledged that it is impossible to procure anything whatever from three counties—Monmouth, Bedford, and Huntingdon. If strict justice were done, perhaps one or two other counties would be in the same vacant condition, for they have yielded no traditional music actually extant within their boundaries. In a few instances, songs preserved in one county are proved to have existed in bygone times in another, now vacant; thus, “The Prickly Bush,” the words and tune of which came from Somersetshire, is mentioned in a letter of the Precentor of Lincoln, in Notes and Queries, as having been taught to him by a nurse, who learnt it in Buckinghamshire, on the strength of which it has been transferred to the latter county. In like manner, “Ground for the Floor” was received as a Yorkshire tune, in spite of its obviously south-country character; another Yorkshire correspondent, to whom the song was only known by name, gave the clue to its origin by stating that it had been introduced into Yorkshire by fen reapers from Cambridgeshire. In some cases, too, the strong internal evidence for a certain locality (viz., names of towns, &c.), has been taken as sufficient for the localization of the song. Rutland is thus provided for, in the canon, “Now, Robin, lend to me thy bow,” which, by the way, is the only specimen of what may be called “composed” music in the book. This song, too, affords the only instance in which the words have been modernized, but even here, the process only refers to the spelling. In all other cases, the words have been left absolutely unaltered, and the melodies have in no instance been tampered with.

Special thanks are due to the following gentlemen for help of various kinds:—to Mr. H. M. Bower, of Ripon, for numbers of Yorkshire songs, and for careful annotations of these and songs of other counties; to Mr. Heywood Sumner, for numerous south-country songs, as well as for permission to use tunes already published in his Besom Maker; to the Rev. S. Baring Gould and Mr. F. Kidson, for assistance in the matter of identifying tunes, and other help.

Permission for the use of material already printed has been most kindly granted by Miss M. Mason, whose Nursery Rhymes and Country Songs are often referred to; and by Miss Charlotte Burne, whose Shropshire Folk-Lore has been of the greatest service in dealing with the music of that district.

The help of the following is to be gratefully acknowledged:—

It has been found impossible, in a volume of the present dimensions, to include even the bulk of the materials collected for the purpose. The design of the book imposed certain restrictions, and made it undesirable to include more than four songs from any one county. From some of the richer counties, however, many more have been received that are in every respect worthy to be preserved. Should sufficient encouragement be bestowed upon the present undertaking, the editors hope, at some future time, to issue another collection containing those now necessarily excluded.

If any readers should be able to throw light on any of the songs here given, or should know other versions of tunes or words than those given or referred to in these pages, they will greatly oblige the editors by sending such information either to Miss L. E. Broadwood, Lyne, Rusper, Horsham; or, to Mr. J. A. Fuller Maitland, 39, Phillimore Gardens, Kensington, W.

The Water of Tyne.

J. A. F. M.

Musical score for "The Water of Tyne" in G major, 6/8 time, Moderato. The score consists of three systems of vocal melody and piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "1. I cannot get to my love if I would dee, The wa-ter of Tyne runs be-tween him and me; And here I must stand with the tear in my e'e, Both sigh-ing and sick-ly my sweet-heart to see."

- 1 I CANNOT get to my love if I would dee,
 The water of Tyne runs between him and me;
 And here I must stand with the tear in my e'e,
 Both sighing and sickly my sweetheart to see.
- 2 O where is the boatman? my bonny hinny!
 O where is the boatman? bring him to me,—
 To ferry me over the Tyne to my honey,
 And I will remember the boatman and thee.
- 3 O bring me a boatman, I'll give any money,
 And you for your trouble rewarded shall be.
 To ferry me over the Tyne to my honey,
 Or scull him across that rough river to me.

(Words and tune from Northumbrian Minstrelsy, p. 89.)

Mr. S. Reay, Mus. B., in a paper on "Northumberland Ballad Music," read before the National Society of Professional Musicians, in January, 1892, states that this song was taken down by Mr. Stokoe from the singing of an old man at Hexham, and that it has appeared in many song-books since 1793.—Musical News, January 22, 1892.

Robbie Tamson's Smiddie.

The musical score consists of three staves. The top staff is a vocal line in G major (one sharp) with a treble clef. The lyrics are written below the notes: "fol de du - y, du - y day, Sing fol de du - y dad - dy." The middle and bottom staves are piano accompaniment, with the middle staff in treble clef and the bottom staff in bass clef. The piano part features a simple harmonic accompaniment with chords and moving lines.

- 1 ME mither mend't me auld breeks,
But ay! but they were diddy;
She sent me to get shod the mare
At Robbie Tamson's smiddie.
Now t' smiddie lies ayent the burn
That wamples thro' the claughin',
And ne'er a time I pass that way
But aye I fall a-laughin'.
- 2 Now Robin was a canny lad
Wha had an ainly daughter;
He'd niver let her tak a mon,
Though mony a yan had sought her.
I'll tell you news of my exploits
The time the mare was shoeing,
I steppit in ahint the lass
And quickly fell a-woeing.
- 3 It's aye she eyed my auld breeks
The time that they were making;
Says I, " My lass, ne'er mind my breeks,
There's new yans for the making.
Gin ye'll agree to gang wi' me,
And leave the carle thy father,
Ye'll hae my breeks to keep in trim,
Myself and a' together."
- 4 The lassie smiled and shook her head,
Says she, " Your offer's clever;
I think I'll gang awa' wi' yan,
We'll baith gae on the back o't.
For gin I wait my father's time
I'll wait till I bin fifty;
So I think I'll tak ye at your word,
And make a wife sae thrifty."
- 5 Now Robbie was an angry man,
For a' t' loss of his daughter,
Through all the town baith up and down,
And far and near he sought her.
But when he cam to our gude inn
And found us baith together,
Says I, " My lad, I've tick your bairn,
Tho' ye may tak my mither."
- 6 Now Robbie girmed and shook his head:
Quo' he, " I think I'll marry;
And so I'll tak ye at your word,
To end the hurry burry."
So Robbie and our ain gudewife
Agreed to creep together:
So I've ta'en Robbie Tamson's pet,
And Robbie's ta'en my mither.

(Words and tune from Mrs. T. H. Farrer, who learnt the song in Canada from Mr. Richard Turner.
A Scotch version is also in existence.)

There was a Lady in the West.

Lay the bank with the bonny broom ;
"To you we thus our answers bring."
Fa lang, &c.

13 "Envy is greener than the grass,"
Lay the bank with the bonny broom ;
"Flattery, smoother than crystal glass,"
Fa lang, &c.

14 "Rumour is louder than a horn,"
Lay the bank with the bonny broom ;
"Hunger is sharper than a thorn."
Fa lang, &c.

15 "Truth is brighter than the light,"
Lay the bank with the bonny broom ;
"Falsehood is darker than the night."
Fa lang, &c.

16 "Revenge is keener than an axe,"
Lay the bank with the bonny broom ;
"Love is softer than melting wax."
Fa lang, &c.

17 "The world is rounder than a ring,"
Lay the bank with the bonny broom ;
"To you we thus our answers bring."
Fa lang, &c.

18 "Thus you have our answers nine,"
Lay the bank with the bonny broom ;
"And we never shall be thine."
Fa lang the dillo,
Fa lang the dillo, dillo, dee.

(Mitford, Northumberland ; from Miss Mason's Nursery Rhymes, &c., p. 31.)

The words are apparently a late version of the well-known Riddle Myth, found in all mythologies. A famous instance of its use in modern art is an episode in Act I. of Wagner's Siegfried. Compare with this song, "The Three Sisters," a Cornish version, given in Davies Gilbert's "Christmas Carols."—

There were three sis - ters fair and bright, Jen - ni - fer, Gentle, and Rose - ma - rie ; And they three loved one va - liant knight, As the dew flies o - ver the mul - ber - ry tree.

The first system of the musical score consists of three staves. The top staff is a vocal line in treble clef, 6/8 time, with a key signature of one sharp (F#). It begins with a whole rest followed by a quarter note G4, a quarter note A4, and a quarter note B4. The middle staff is the right-hand piano accompaniment in treble clef, marked Allegro. and mf. It features a rhythmic pattern of eighth and sixteenth notes. The bottom staff is the left-hand piano accompaniment in bass clef, 6/8 time, with a key signature of one sharp. It consists of a series of chords. A Ped. (pedal) marking is present at the end of the system, followed by an asterisk (*).

1. Come,

The second system of the musical score consists of three staves. The top staff is the vocal line in treble clef, 6/8 time, with a key signature of one sharp. The lyrics are: "Dea - vie, I'll tell thee a se - cret, But thou mun lock't up i' thee breast, I". The middle staff is the right-hand piano accompaniment in treble clef, and the bottom staff is the left-hand piano accompaniment in bass clef, both in 6/8 time with a key signature of one sharp.

The third system of the musical score consists of three staves. The top staff is the vocal line in treble clef, 6/8 time, with a key signature of one sharp. The lyrics are: "wud-dn't for aw Dalston par-ish It com to the ears o' the rest; Now I'll". The middle staff is the right-hand piano accompaniment in treble clef, and the bottom staff is the left-hand piano accompaniment in bass clef, both in 6/8 time with a key signature of one sharp.

The fourth system of the musical score consists of three staves. The top staff is the vocal line in treble clef, 6/8 time, with a key signature of one sharp. The lyrics are: "hod te a bit of a wea-ger, A goat to thy tuppens I'll lay, Tou". The middle staff is the right-hand piano accompaniment in treble clef, and the bottom staff is the left-hand piano accompaniment in bass clef, both in 6/8 time with a key signature of one sharp.

The musical score consists of two systems. The first system features a vocal line in treble clef with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a common time signature. The lyrics are: "can - not guess whee I's in luive wi', And nob - bet keep off Sal - ly Gray". Below the vocal line is a piano accompaniment with a grand staff (treble and bass clefs). The second system continues the piano accompaniment, starting with a forte dynamic marking 'f'.

COME, Deavie, I'll tell thee a secret,
 But tou mun lock't up i' thee breast,
 I wuddn't for aw Dalston parish
 It com to the ears o' the rest ;
 Now I'll hod te a bit of a weager,
 A groat to thy tuppens I'll lay,
 Tou cannot guess whee I's in luive wi' ;
 And nobbet keep off Sally Gray.

2 There's Cumwhitton, Cumwhinton, Cumranton,

 And mony mair cums i' the county,
 But nin wi' Cumdivock can match ;
 It's sae neyce to luik owre the black pasture,
 Wi' the fells abuin aw, far away—
 There is nee sic pleace, nit in England,
 For there lives the sweet Sally Gray.

3 I was sebenteen last Collop-Monday,
 And she's just the varra same yage,
 For ae kiss o' the sweet lips o' Sally,
 I'd freely give up a year's wage ;
 For in lang winter neets when she's spinnin'
 And singin' about Jemmy Gay,
 I keek by the hay-stack, and lissen,
 For wain wad I see Sally Gray.

[Two stanzas omitted.]

4 O wad I but lword o' the manor,
 A nabob, or parliament man,
 What thousands on thousands I'd gi' her,
 Wad she nobbet gi' me her han'.
 A cwoach and six horses I'd buy her,
 And gar fwock stan' out o' the way,
 Then I'd loup up behint like a footman,
 O the worl' for my sweet Sally Gray!

5 They may brag o' their feyne Carel lasses,
 Their feathers, their durtment, and leace ;
 God help them ! peer deeth-luikin' bodies,
 Widout a bit reed i' their feace.
 But Sally's just like allybaster,
 Her cheeks are twee rwose-buds in May—
 O lad ! I cou'd stan' here for ever,
 And talk about sweet Sally Gray.

The first system of music consists of three staves. The top staff is a vocal line in treble clef with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a 6/8 time signature. The middle staff is a piano accompaniment in treble clef, marked Vivace. The bottom staff is a piano accompaniment in bass clef, marked f. The music begins with a few measures of rest in the vocal line, followed by a rhythmic pattern of eighth and sixteenth notes.

The second system of music consists of three staves. The top staff is a vocal line with the lyrics: "me and my mar-row was gang - in to wark, We met wi' the Deel, it". The middle and bottom staves are piano accompaniment. The music continues with a similar rhythmic pattern to the first system.

The third system of music consists of three staves. The top staff is a vocal line with the lyrics: "was i' the dark; I up wi' my pick, it was i' the neet, I". The middle and bottom staves are piano accompaniment. The music continues with a similar rhythmic pattern to the first system.

The fourth system of music consists of three staves. The top staff is a vocal line with the lyrics: "knocked off his horns, like - wise his club feet. Fol - low the hor - ses,". The middle and bottom staves are piano accompaniment, with dynamic markings f and f with an accent (>) appearing. The music concludes with a final chord.

John-ny, my lad-dy! Fol-low them thro', my can - ny lad, O! Fol-low the hor - ses,

John - ny, my lad-dy. O lad lye a - way, . . can - ny lad O!

- 1 As me and my marrow was gangin to wark,
We met wi' the Deel, it was i' the dark;
I up wi' my pick, it was i' the neet,
I knocked off his horns, likewise his club feet.
Follow the horses, Johnny, my laddy!
Follow them through, my canny lad, O!
Follow the horses, Johnny, my laddy,
O lad lye away, canny lad O!
- 2 As me and my marrow was putten the tram,
The lowe it went out, and my marrow gat wrang;
How ye wad ha' laughed, had ye seen the fine gain,
The deel gat my marrow, but I got the tram.
Follow the horses, &c.
- 3 Oh, marrow! oh, marrow! oh, what dost thou think?
I've broken my bottle, and spilt all my drink;
I've lost all my shin splints among the great stanes;
Draw me to the shaft, lad, its time to gan hame.
Follow the horses, &c.
- 4 Oh, marrow! oh, marrow! on, where has te been?
Drivin' the dritt fra' the law seam;
Drivin' the drift fra' the law seam;
Had up thy lowe, lad, deel stop thy e'en.
Follow the horses, &c.
- 5 There is my horse, and there is my tram;
Twee horns full o' grease will make her to gan;
There is my hoggars, likewise my half shoon,
And smash my pit sark, for my putten's a' done.
Follow the horses, &c.

I hope you'll answer as many for me; (bis)
And then thou shalt be a true lover of mine.
- 6 Is any of you going to Scarborough Fair?
Remember me to a lass as lives there; (bis)
For once she was a true lover of mine.
- 7 Tell her to make me a cambric shirt,
Without any needles or thread or owt through't: (bis)
And then she shall be a true lover of mine.
- 8 Tell her to wash it by yonder wall
Where water ne'er sprung, nor a drop o' rain fall; (bis)
And then she shall be a true lover of mine.
- 9 Tell her to dry it on yonder thorn,
Where blossom ne'er grew sin' Adam was born; (bis)
And then she shall be a true lover of mine.
- 10 And now I have answered your questions three,
And I hope you'll answer as many for me, (bis)
And then thou shalt be a true lover of mine.

This song was taken down by H. M. Bower, Esq., in December, 1891, from William Moat, a Whitby fisherman. The singer lays special importance upon the pauses, which, he says, should be "doddered" and held very long. If any answers to the various tasks proposed ever existed, they are now lost; but it is not certain that these verses were ever sung; nor is the application of the two tunes at all certain, though the arrangement which gives verses one and six to the first tune and the rest to the second, suits the character of the words, and is that followed by the singer. The answers, if they existed, would have been sung to the first tune; but it is strange that, if so, no trace of them should remain except such as is to be found in verses five and ten. No attempt has been made to represent the dialect phonetically. Compare the two versions given in Kidson's Traditional Tunes, which complete the four-line stanza without repetition, by a refrain for the second line. The tune of "The Seasons of the Year" (Sussex, p. 143) is evidently a variant of the second tune given above.

Allegro.

The piano introduction consists of three staves. The top staff is a treble clef with a key signature of one flat and a 6/8 time signature. The middle and bottom staves are a grand staff (treble and bass clefs). The music is in a simple, rhythmic style with a steady eighth-note accompaniment in the bass and a more melodic line in the treble.

1. Here we come a - was-sail-ing, a-mong the leaves of green; Here we come a -

The first system of the song features a vocal line on a single treble staff and a piano accompaniment on a grand staff. The lyrics are: "1. Here we come a - was-sail-ing, a-mong the leaves of green; Here we come a -". The piano accompaniment provides a steady accompaniment with chords and moving lines in both hands.

The chorus system includes a vocal line and piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "- wan-der-ing, so fair - ly to be seen. Our .. jol - ly was - sail,". The piano accompaniment includes a dynamic marking of f (forte) and a Ped. (pedal) instruction. The music continues with a steady accompaniment.

Also the little children, which round the table grew.
Our jolly wassail, &c.

(Words and tune from H. M. Bower, Esq.)

This song is sung about Anston, in South Yorkshire, and about Galphay, near Ripon. The children carry green boughs, and wave them over their heads, asking for a New Year's gift. The version given is that sung at Anston. Compare the "Souling Song" (Cheshire), p. 30; the "Peace-Egging Song" (Lancashire), p. 22; and other ditties of the same kind. A Shrewsbury version, more nearly resembling the "Souling Song," is given in Shropshire Folk Lore, p. 568, and a different tune is given there.

all my de-sire is to make us large room, And a-bun-dance of pas-time we'll have. . .

Prologue to Dance.

These are six ac-tors bold, Ne-ver came on stage be-fore; And they will do their best, And the best can do no more.

- 1 You noble spectators, wherever you be,
Your attention I beg and I crave;
For all my desire is to make us large room,
And abundance of pastime we'll have.
- 2 I am the second Samson, in Judges you'll find,
Who delights in his darling so dear;
What a blockhead was I for to tell her my mind,
And so gallant and quick you shall hear.
- 3 The first he comes on like a ranting young lad— [Bowing to the first of the six dancers.]
He conquers wherever he goes;
He's scorned by his enemies to be controlled.
And his name it is King William Raw.
- 4 The next is his brother, you might think they were twins, [No. 1 bows to No. 2]
I thought by the world they would fight;
When these two Philistians seizèd on me,
You'd ha' thought they had ruined me quite.

- 5 The third is a man of some more milder blood, [No. 2 bows to No. 3,
Some pity there's lodged in his breast;
He oftentimes threatened to do me some good,
But he doesn't (qy. durstn't?) for fear of the rest.
- 6 The fourt' he comes on like a ranting young lad, [No. 3 bows to No. 4,
He's like some great gestical stand;
It was he that gave orders that I should be polled,
So they fettered my feet and my hands.
- 7 The fift' is as cruel' as cruel can be, [No. 4 bows to No. 5,
The others and him did revise (qy. advise?):
It was he that gave orders I should no more see,
So they instantly bored out my eyes.
- 8 The sixt' is no better at all than the rest, [No. 5 bows to No. 6,
He was the first breeder of strife;
If any of you then had been in my place,
You'd ha' been glad to com'd off with your life.
- 9 These are the six lords that first ruined me,
Without the consent of my dear;
But I will come even with them by-and-bye
So gallant and quick you shall hear.
- 10 When they were all merry carousing with wine,
When first down for Samson did call;
He pulled down the house, slew all at that time,
So there was an end of 'em all.

[After singing the above, the Clown takes the dancers out one by one, to form the dancing party, and then sings the following Prologue to the Dance itself.

These are six actors bold,
Never came on stage before;
And they will do their best,
And the best can do no more.

You've seen them all go round,
Think on 'em what you will;
Music strike up and play
"T' aud lass fra Dallowgill."

(Words and tune from H. M. Bower, Esq.)

The tune generally played for the dance was "My love she's but a lassie yet," but the tune of the Prologue has so much of the Morris Dance character that it very possibly served to dance to. The instruments are two fiddles and a small drum; the musicians and Clown are dressed in blue calico jackets with red braid and a pink sash or hem, white calico trousers with red stripe, and a pink cap; the dancers wear pink jackets with blue braid and sash, white trousers with red stripe, and a blue cap. This was a traditional performance by the old inhabitants of Kirby Malzeard, near Ripon. Mr. Bower says: "Taken down by me from old Thomas Wood, of Kirby Malzeard, who sings and repeats it. But he will have nothing to do with the present Christmas sword-dancers, or "Moowers," who, he says, 'have never had the full of it, and don't dress properly, nor do it in any form, being a bad, idle company; but were originally taught by him to make up his numbers at the Ripon Millenary Festival.'"

Mr. Bower sends another version of the words, from Skelton, near Ripon, with some characteristic differences of text. The scheme is the same, and from the phrase "I am the second Samson" it would seem that this song is only a part of a larger play in which the seven worthies took part. In the Skelton version the first verse is omitted, but there is a second verse as follows:—

"A foxtail, a foxtail is not on my back to be seen;
Although I go ragged and wear a fool's cap
Who knows but I am loved by the Queen."

The stanza is obviously corrupt, but it may have contained a reference to the exploit related in Judges xv. Verse 3, which is without meaning in the version given above, runs—

"Here comes the first lad that laid hands upon me,
Although I was grieved to the heart;
As I sat asleep on my dear darling's knee
The barber was playing his part."

In verse 6 occurs the more reasonable "bound" for "polled." The swollen last line of verse 8 is given as—
"You would have been matched to come off with your life."

Verse 9 is omitted, and the first two lines of verse 10 run thus—

"As they were a carousing so merry with wine,
So loud out for Samson did call;"

and the Prologue to the Dance is in a different metre from that given above, as follows:—

"Come Fiddlers, be your strings advancing,
When you hear me sweetly sing
Pretty lads come fall a-dancing
When you hear the fiddle-string."

This version was written down by John Fawcett, farm foreman in the service of Captain Hincks, of Breconboro', near Thirsk.

Formerly the dresses were adorned with many ribbons, as were also the head-dresses, which were like tall hats with cockades or plumes.

1 A NORTH-COUNTRY maid up to London had strayed,
Although with her nature it did not agree;
She wept, and she sighed, and she bitterly cried,
"I wish once again in the north I could be,
Oh, the oak and the ash and the bonny ivy tree,
They flourish at home in my own country.

2 "While sadly I roam, I regret my dear home,
Where lads and young lasses are making the hay;

The merry bells ring, and the birds sweetly sing,
And maidens and meadows are pleasant and gay.
Oh, the oak and the ash, &c.

3 "No doubt did I please, I could marry with ease,
Where maidens are fair, many lovers will come;
But he whom I wed must be north-country bred,
And carry me back to my north-country home.

(Words and tune from Miss Margaret Royds, Heysham.)

The Peace-Egg is obviously a version of a mumming play, differing chiefly in the fact that it is performed at Easter instead of Christmas. The name is a corruption of Pasche-Egg, or Easter Egg. At Heysham it is performed by five or six children, or, on some occasions, by a company of men, numbering at least a dozen. It is still kept up in Holy Week, except on Good Friday; and not long ago even that day was no exception. Now-a-days the costume is simply a night shirt worn over the clothes, ornamented with tags of coloured ribbon and paper, sewn in all directions. The performers wear masks, and one of them is always an old woman (see last verse of both songs). She is generally arm-in-arm with a shabby old man, who has his back stuffed out with straw. The "Singer-in" (compare "Open the Door" in the Morris-Dancers' Play given in Shropshire Folk Lore, p. 484 ff.) starts first, and walks round by himself in a circle, singing the first verse. With each succeeding verse another joins him, until at last they are all singing and walking round, the old man and woman last. They stand still to sing the extra verse, "Come ladies and gentlemen" (the last verse of Song 1, which, it should be observed, forms the last verse of both songs), and then run off with money and eggs to the next house. As in all performances of the kind, there is a tradition in the memory of old inhabitants of much more elaborate ceremonies being gone through. The correct dress of this one is said to have been white stockings with sandal shoes, white breeches (with the exception of the old woman, let us hope), and white smock-frocks. The old man had, besides his straw hump, straw wrapped round his legs, and a long straw tail. The players used to fight with swords; and at one period (nearly seventy years ago), a doctor was introduced with a magic bottle, for restoring the slain. He had to touch the fallen man, and say:—

'I've a bottle in my pocket of Alicampane,
 Jump up, Saint George, and fight again.'

This incident (which appears in many existing versions of the play) was an innovation, borrowed from another set of actors who used to come on Easter Monday from another village twelve miles away.

For more information concerning the custom of "Peace-Egging," see Folk Lore Record vol. iii., part I., p. 87; and Bohn's Brand, vol. i. p. 176.

Green gravel, green gravel, the grass is so green;

He sends you this letter for to turn round your head

(Words and tune from Mrs. Harley, Bewdley.)

A circle of children stand hand in hand, one child in the middle; they sing, and at the words "turn round your head," the child named by the one in the middle has to turn face outwards and join hands again. The game goes on till all the children are turned face outwards.

The following version is sung in Derbyshire; and another tune for the same words is given by Miss Burne in Shropshire Folk Lore, pp. 510 and 656.

AROUND THE GREEN GRAVEL.

1. Around the green gra-vel the grass is so green; All the pretty fair maids are plain to be seen;

Wash them in milk, and clothe them in silk, . . . Write their names down with a gold pen and ink.

2 All but {poor Mary
Miss Jenny} her sweetheart is dead;
She has left off her wedding to turn round her head.

In a Worcestershire version of this game, contributed by Mrs. Harley, a second verse is given, as follows:—

“O mother, O mother, do you think it is true?”
“O yes, child, O yes, child!” “Then what shall I do?”
“We’ll wash you in milk, we’ll dress you in silk,
And write down your name with a gold pen and ink.”

This game is played by girls only, all joining hands and dancing in a ring. One, called the “mother,” who, by the way, does not stand in the middle, but in the ring, names the girls in any order she pleases. As each girl is named, she turns her back on the ring and covers her face with her hands or pinafore; the game then goes on without her.

This dismal little game, which has been found in many parts of the country, is obviously a dramatic representation of mourning, and the suggested explanation of “green gravel” as a corruption of “green grave” is almost undoubtedly the right one. In the Scottish lowlands, about a hundred years ago, the attendants on a corpse newly laid out went out of the death-chamber, returning into it backwards. Is there possibly a reference to this or a similar custom in the words “turn round your head” in this game?

1 A CHESHIRE man sailed into Spain,
To trade for merchandize ;
When he arrivéd from the main,
A Spaniard him espies :

Who said, " You English rogue, look here !
What fruit and spices fine
Our land produces twice a year !
Thou hast not such in thine."

3 The Cheshire man ran to his hoard,
And fetched a Cheshire cheese ;
And said, " Look here, you dog ! behold !
We have such fruits as these.

4 " Your fruits are ripe but twice a year,
As you yourself do say ;
But such as I present you here,
Our land brings twice a day."

5 The Spaniard in a passion flew,
And his rapier took in hand ;
The Cheshire man kick'd up his heels.
Saying, " Thou'rt at my command."

6 So never let the Spaniard boast
While Cheshire men abound ;
Lest they should teach him to his cost
To dance a Cheshire round.

A soul-cake, &c.

(Words and tune from the Rev. M. P. Holme. Tattenhall.)

The latter part of the second stanza is restored from Miss Burne's Shropshire Folk Lore, p. 385. The rest of the song was sung, exactly as it stands, by a little girl in Tattenhall School, in October, 1891. A full account of the custom of "souling" is given by Miss Burne, Shropshire Folk Lore, pp. 378—390. It is still practised on All-Souls' Day in the district referred to, and traces of the custom are to be found in many parts of England. See also Halliwell's Popular Rhymes, pp. 238 and 249.

The piano introduction is in 3/4 time, G major, and consists of four measures. The right hand features a melodic line with eighth-note patterns, while the left hand provides a steady accompaniment. Dynamics are marked as p, mf, f, and dim.

1. I will give you the keys of heaven, I will give you the keys of heaven,

The first vocal line is a simple melody in G major. The piano accompaniment consists of a continuous eighth-note pattern in the right hand and a bass line in the left hand. The dynamic is marked mp.

Madam, will you walk ? Madam, will you talk ? Madam, will you walk and

The second vocal line continues the melody. The piano accompaniment features a more active right hand with sixteenth-note patterns. Dynamics are marked as p, mf, and f.

The third vocal line concludes the phrase. The piano accompaniment returns to a simpler eighth-note pattern. The piece ends with a double bar line.

1.

He. I will give you the keys of heaven,
 I will give you the keys of heaven,
 Madam, will you walk? Madam, will you talk?
 Madam, will you walk and talk with me?

She. Though you give me the keys of heaven,
 Though you give me the keys of heaven,
 Yet I will not walk; no, I will not talk;
 No, I will not walk or talk with thee.

 To make you fine when you go to town;
 Madam, &c.

She. Though you give me a blue silk gown,
 To make me fine when I go to town;
 Yet, &c.

He. I will give you a coach and six,
 Six black horses as black as pitch;
 Madam, &c.

She. Though you give me a coach and six,
 Six black horses as black as pitch;
 Yet, &c.

He. I will give you the keys of my heart,
 And we will be married till death us do part;
 Madam, &c.

She. Thou shalt give me the keys of thy heart,
 And we'll be married till death us do part;
 I will walk, I will talk;
 I will walk and talk with thee.

(From the Rev. S. Baring-Gould, who had it from the Rev. F. Partridge.)

The first two stanzas and the tune come from Cheshire, the other verses were forgotten, but are restored from an East country version. In a version sent from Masham, Yorkshire, the second line of verse 1 runs: "To lock the gates when the clock strikes seven." See Halliwell's Popular Rhymes, p. 21; Chambers's Rhymes of Scotland, p. 213; Mason's Country Songs, for other versions. In many the lady's cupidity is at last excited by some especially magnificent offer, and, on her consenting, the man refuses to have anything to do with her.

1st time. Last verse.

The musical score consists of a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line is in G minor (one flat) and 3/4 time. The piano accompaniment features a rhythmic pattern of eighth and sixteenth notes. The score is divided into two systems. The first system covers the first two lines of lyrics. The second system covers the next two lines, with a '1st time' section followed by a 'Last verse' section.

- 1 "Cold blows the wind o'er my true love,
Cold blow the drops of rain ;
I never, never had but one true love,
And in Camvile he was slain.
I'll do as much for my true love
As any young girl may ;
I'll sit and weep down by his grave
For twelve months and a day."
- 2 But when twelve months were come and gone,
This young man he arose,
"What makes you weep down by my grave ?
I can't take my repose."
"One kiss, one kiss of your lily-white lips,
One kiss is all I crave ;
One kiss, one kiss of your lily-white lips,
And return back to your grave."
- 3 "My lips they are as cold as clay,
My breath is heavy and strong ;
If thou wast to kiss my lily-white lips,
Thy days would not be long !"
"O don't you remember the garden grove,
Where we was used to walk ?
Pluck the finest flower of them all,
'Twill wither to a stalk."
- 4 "Go fetch me a nut from a dungeon keep,
And water from a stone,
And white milk from a maiden's breast
That babe bare never none."
"Go dig me a grave both wide, and deep,
(As quickly as you may)
I will lie down in it and take one sleep
For a twelvemonth and a day."

(From Shropshire Folk Lore, pp. 542, 651.)

Compare with this tune, "By chance it was I met my love," in Songs of the West. These, as well as "Lazarus" (p. 102), and "The Thresher" (p. 68), are possibly all versions of the same original. The tune "Gilderoy" (See Ritson's Scottish Songs), published in D'Urfey's Pills to Purge Melancholy, 1719, is probably another version, more nearly resembling "The Thresher."

[ISLE OF MAN.]

J. A. F. M.

The first system of the musical score consists of three staves. The top staff is a vocal line in treble clef, starting with a whole rest. The middle staff is a piano accompaniment in treble clef, and the bottom staff is in bass clef. The tempo is marked 'Andante.' The key signature has two flats (B-flat and E-flat), and the time signature is 3/4. The piano accompaniment features a steady eighth-note bass line and chords in the right hand.

The second system continues the musical score. The vocal line begins with the lyrics 'r. O My - le - cha -'. The piano accompaniment continues with the same rhythmic pattern as the first system.

The third system continues the musical score. The vocal line has the lyrics '. rane, where got you your gold? (Lone, lone you have left . . me'. The piano accompaniment continues with the same rhythmic pattern.

The fourth system continues the musical score. The vocal line has the lyrics 'here;) . . . O not in the cur - ragh, deep un - der the'. The piano accompaniment continues with the same rhythmic pattern.

The musical score consists of three staves. The top staff is a vocal line in G minor, 4/4 time, with lyrics: "mould, (Lone, lone, and void . . . of cheer.) . . .". The middle staff is the right-hand piano accompaniment, and the bottom staff is the left-hand piano accompaniment. The music features a simple, plaintive melody with a steady accompaniment.

O VYLECHARANE! c' raad hooar oo dty stoyr,

- 6 One sandal was white, and t'other dark brown,
 (Lone, lone you have left me here;)
 But he'd two of one colour for kirk and for town.
 (Lone, lone, and void of cheer.)
- 7 "O father, I really can't walk by your side,
 (Lone, lone you have left me here;)
 If you go to the church in those sandals of hide."
 (Lone, lone, and void of cheer.)
- 8 "O daughter, my dear, if my brogues give you pain,
 (Lone, lone you have left me here;)
 There's that in the coffer will make you look fain."
 (Lone, lone, and void of cheer.)
- 9 A million of curses on Mylecharane,
 Lone, lone you have left me here;)
 The first who gave tocher to daughter in Man.
 (Lone, lone, and void of cheer.)

(The Tune from "Mylecharane," arranged, &c., by Elizabeth Cookson, the Words from Notes and Queries, Ser. 4, ii. 465, said to be translated by George Borrow. Mylecharane was a miser who lived in the Curragh of Jurby; he was the first Manxman who gave a fortune to a daughter.)

The fifth system of the musical score. The vocal line concludes with the lyrics 'Tho-mas he went un-to fair E - lea - nor, That should have been his sweet bride.'. The piano accompaniment includes a triplet of eighth notes.

- 1 LORD THOMAS he was a bold forester,
A-chasing of the king's deer;
Fair Eleanor she was a fine woman,
And Lord Thomas loved her dear.
* * * * *
- It happened on a high holiday,
As many another beside,
Lord Thomas he went unto fair Eleanor,
That should have been his sweet bride.
* * * * *
- 2 "What news, what news, Lord Thomas," she said
"What news have you brought to me?"
"I am come to bid thee to my wedding,
And that is bad news unto thee."
"O God forbid," fair Eleanor cried,
"That ever such thing should be done!
I thought to ha' been the bride my own self
And thee to ha' been the bridegroom."
* * * * *
- 3 She dressed herself in rich attire,
Her merry-men all in green;
In every town that she rode through
They took her to be some queen.
And when she raught* to Lord Thomas's door,
So boldly she tirded at the pin;
O who was so ready as Lord Thomas
For to let fair Eleanor in?
- 4 He took her by the lily-white hand,
He led her through the hall,
He took her into the drawing-room,
And fixed her above them all.
* * * * *
- The brown girl had a knife in her hand,
It was both keen and sharp;
And 'twixt the long ribs and the short
She pricked fair Eleanor's heart.
- 5 "O what is the matter?" Lord Thomas he says;
"Methinks you look wondrous wan,
Which you used to have as fair a colour
As ever the sun shone on."
"O are you blind, Lord Thomas," she says;
"Or cannot you very well see?
O cannot you see my own heart's blood
Run trickling down to my knee?"
- 6 Lord Thomas having a sword in his hand,
It was both keen and small:
He took off the brown girl's head
And threw it against the wall.
He sticked the haft against the floor,
The point against his own heart;
O never so soon did three lovers meet,
And never so soon did part!
- 7 Lord Thomas was buried in the lower chancel,
Fair Eleanor in the higher;
Out of Lord Thomas there grew a wild rose,
And out of her a briar.
They grew so high, they grew so wide,
They raught* to the chancel-top;
And when that they could grow no higher,
They knit of a true-lovers' knot.

deed, Sir, 'tis true, Sir, I never was given to lie, . . . And (Concluding Symphony as above.)

- 1 As I was going to Derby, Sir, 'twas on a summer's day,
I met the finest ram, Sir, that ever was fed on hay;
And indeed, Sir, 'tis true, Sir, I never was given to lie,
And if you'd been to Derby, Sir, you'd have seen him as well as I.
- 2 It had four feet to walk on, Sir, it had four feet to stand,
And every foot it had, Sir, did cover an acre of land.
And indeed, Sir, &c.
- 3 The horns that were on its head, Sir, held a regiment of men,
And the tongue that was in its head, Sir, would feed them every one.
And indeed, Sir, &c.
- 4 The wool that was on its back, Sir, made fifty packs of cloth,
And for to tell a lie, Sir, I'm sure I'm very loth.
And indeed, Sir, &c.
- 5 The wool that was on its sides, Sir, made fifty more complete,
And it was sent to Russia to clothe the Emperor's fleet.
And indeed, Sir, &c.
- 6 The tail was fifty yards, Sir, as near as I can tell,
And it was sent to Rome, Sir, to ring Saint Peter's Bell.
And indeed, Sir, &c.

(The words and tune from Miss Mason, Morton, near Retford. See also Jewitt's Derbyshire Ballads, p. 115, and Notes and Queries, I. ii. 71, 235. The tune bears a strong resemblance to that given in Chappell's Popular Music of the Olden Time for the Hobby Horse Dance.

The following Northumbrian version is sufficiently characteristic to be given in full:—

THE DERBY RAM.

1. As I was go-ing to Der-by, all on a sun-shine day, . . . I met with the jol-li-est ram, Sir, that ev-er was fed on hay. . . Indeed, Sir, it's true, Sir, I ne'er was used to lie, . . . And if you had been at Der - by, You'd have seen him as well as I. . . .

This version was learnt by Mrs. A. J. Hipkins from her grandmother, a native of Northumberland :—

- 1 As I was going to Derby, all on a sunshine day,
I met with the jolliest ram, Sir, that ever was fed on hay.
Indeed, Sir, it's true, Sir, I ne'er was used to lie,
And if you had been at Derby, you'd have seen him as well as I.
- 2 He had four feet to gang on, and four feet to stand ;
And every foot that he sat down did cover an acre of land.
Indeed, Sir, &c.
- 3 The backbone of this ram, Sir, made the mainmast of a ship ;
And that did carry the finest sail in all the British fleet.
Indeed, Sir, &c.
- 4 The wool that grew on his sides, Sir, made fifty packs complete
And that was sent to Flanders to clothe the British fleet.
Indeed, Sir, &c.
- 5 The horns that grew on his head, Sir, they grew up to the sky ;
And the eagles did build their nests there, for I heard the young ones cry.
Indeed, Sir, &c.
- 6 The tail that hung behind him, was fifty yards and an ell ;
And that was sent to Derby to ring the town kirk bell.
Indeed, Sir, &c.
- 7 The men that killed this ram, Sir, was drowned in his blood ;
And all the people that looked on were washed away in the flood.
Indeed, Sir, &c.

Yet another version of this interesting ballad must be given; it comes from a mumming play acted about Auston and Thorpe in South Yorkshire, and was given to Mr. H. M. Bower by Mrs. Hartley of Galphay. The first version of the tune, sung at Thorpe Salvin thirty years ago, seems to indicate the omission of the passage "And indeed, Sir, 'tis true, Sir," though the shorter chorus only is given with both Yorkshire tunes. The second tune is from Auston. It is to be noted that the syllables Fa-la, etc., are to be pronounced "Fa-lay":—

I. THE OLD TUP.

Fa . la, fol . de - ri, rol . di - ri day. . .

II. THE OLD TUP.

Fol - lol-lay, fol - lol-lay.

- 1 As I was going to Derby, upon a market day,
I met the finest tup, Sir, that ever was fed with hay.
Fol-lol-lay.
- 2 The tup was fat behind, Sir, the tup was fat before,
And every time it put its foot down, it covered an acre or more.
- 3 The wool that grew on its back, Sir, reached up into the sky,
The eagles built their nests in, for I heard the young ones cry.
- 4 The butcher that killed the tup, Sir, was in danger of his life,
He called unto the company, to bring him a larger knife.
- 5 All the old women in Derby, came begging for his ears,
To make them a leather apron, to last them forty years.
- 6 *All the men i' Derby, came begging for his eyes,
To punch up and down all Derby streets, for they was of football size.
- 7 All the lads i' Derby, came begging for his blether,
To punch up and down all Derby streets, instead of punching leather.
- 8 *All the old women i' Derby, came begging for his bones,
To suck the marrow out of them, to nourish their old bones.
- 9 So now my song is ended, and I've nothing more to say,
If you please will you give us a Christmas box, and then we'll go away.

The verses from * to * occur only in the Thorpe Salvin version. Dr. Callcott set some of the words as a glee; the melody employed is none of the versions here given, but it may contain a reminiscence of the opening common to the two Yorkshire versions. It is worth notice that in his form of the words, the butcher "was up to his knees in blood," and that "the boy that held the pail, Sir, was carried away by the flood."

1 It was one summer's morning,
 As I lay on my bed,
 I spied an ancient spider,
 A-spinning of her thread.
 She wove it in a sunny beam,
 As clear as glass might be ;
 The oldest nun that ever spun
 Ne'er spun so fine as she.

2 The first that came into the net,
 A silly fly, was slain ;
 The next that came, a hornet bold,
 Soon broke the net in twain.
 And so I oft-times wonder why
 Are poor men brought to shame,
 While rich men live in vanity,
 And all men praise their name.

3 O if I had but Agur's wish,
 And it might come to me,
 That I were neither poor nor rich,
 How happy I should be !
 For riches are but vanity,
 I heard the wise man cry,
 And when you think to hold them fast,
 Away from you they fly.

4 If rich men would advised be,
 And stewards would be just,
 And to their tenants frank and free,
 When they are put in trust ;
 The hump from off the camel's back
 Would easily be shaven ;
 The camel pass the needle's eye,
 The rich man enter heaven.

The fourth system concludes the piece. The vocal line includes the lyrics: "Three keep - ers' hous - es stood three square, A - bout a mile from each oth - er they were, In". The piano part includes a un poco rit. instruction.

The musical score consists of three systems. The first system is for the vocal line, starting with a treble clef, a key signature of one sharp (F#), and a tempo marking of 'a tempo'. The lyrics 'or - der to look af - ter the deer, Fol de rol lol de rol li do!' are written below the notes. The second system is for the piano accompaniment, starting with a grand staff (treble and bass clefs), a key signature of one sharp, and a tempo marking of 'a tempo'. Three keepers' houses stood three square,
About a mile from each other they were,
In order to look after the deer,

- 2 I and my dogs went out one night,
Right fol lol de li de O!
The moon and stars they shone so bright,

O'er hedges, ditches, gates and stiles,
With my two dogs close at my heels,
To look for a buck in Parkmoor fields,

For my very best dog in the breast got stuck,

He came to me so limping lame,
He was not able to follow the game,
How sorry I was to see the same!

Right fol lol de li de O!
'Twas done by the keeper out of spite,

Right fol lol de li de O!
And limping Jack sent in my stead,
Fol de rol lol de ri da!
In Parkmoor fields, oh there he found
A brave fat buck running over the ground,
And my two dogs soon pulled him down,
Fol de rol lol de rol li do!
- 7 I listened awhile to hear their note,
Right fol lol de li de O!
Jack drew a quivy, and cut his throat,
Fol de rol lol de ri da!
How you'd have laughed to see limping Jack,
Come hopping along with a buck on his back,
And hide it under the miller's haystack,
Fol de rol lol de rol li do!
- 8 We sent for the butcher to dress up our game
Right fol lol de li de O!
And likewise another to sell the same,
Fol de rol lol de ri da!
A very fine haunch we offered for sale,
'Twas to an old woman that sold bad ale,
And, hang her! she brought us all to jail,
Fol de rol lol de rol li do!
- 9 Now sessions are over, assizes are near,
Right fol lol de li de O!
Now Jack and I we must appear,
Fol de rol lol de ri da!
Your bucks and does may range so free,
But hares and rabbits they are for me;
A poacher's life is the life for me,
Fol de rol lol de rol li do!

- 1 I'LL tell you of a fellow, of a fellow I have seen,
He's neither white nor yellow, but altogether green;
His name it is not charming, but only common Bill,
Yet he urges me to wed him, but I hardly think I will.
- 2 Last night he came to see me, he made so long a stay,
That I really thought the blockhead would never go away;
He said it would be jolly as we journey up the hill
To go hand in hand together, but I hardly think I will.
- 3 He talkèd of devotion, devotion pure and deep,
To me it seemèd so silly, I nearly fell asleep,
The tears the creature wasted was enough to turn a mill,
Yet he urges me to have him, but I hardly think I will.
- 4 He told me of a cottage, of a cottage in the trees,
And don't you think this fellow fell down upon his knees?
He said we should be happy as we journey up the hill
To be always with each other, but I hardly think I will.
- 5 You know I would not choose him, but that I'm fairly in it,
For he says if I refuse him he could not live a minute;
And there are the commandments which say you must not kill,
So I've thought the matter over, and I really think I will.

The inclusion of this fine canon may be pardoned, in view of the difficulty of finding any more direct representative of Rutland than the allusion to Uppingham. The words should be sung straight through by each part, each leaving off as the end of the last verse is reached.

The fourth system concludes the vocal line. The lyrics are "gar - dens clean, And let no one steal your thyme." The piano accompaniment ends with a final chord.

- 1 'Tis young men and maidens all,
That are just in your prime,
I would have you to weed your gardens clean,
And let no one steal your thyme.
- 2 For thyme is the finest thing
That does flourish by night and by day,
But there came by such a false young man,
And he stole my thyme away.
- 3 And now I've no old thyme left,
No room for to plant any new,
For on the same spot where my old thyme stood,
It is all overrun with rue.
- 4 The running, running rue,
It's the rue that has ruined me,
- And I oft-times wish in the place where it stands
I had gained a jolly oak-tree.
- 5 My gardener stood by me,
I asked him to choose for me,
There's the lily, pink, and red rosebud,
I refused these flowers all three.
- 6 In June is the red rosebud,
And that's no flower for me,
The red rosebud I will pluck up,
And plant a jolly oak-tree.
- 7 Stand up, oh you jolly, jolly oak!
Don't wither and don't die!
For I'll prove true to the one that I love,
As the stars that are in the sky.

(Words and tune from Mrs. Wilson, of King's Langley, Herts, a native of Northamptonshire.)

The following widely different version of the same song is in the Crampton Ballads, Vol. V., in the British Museum:—

- 1 I SOWED the seeds of love,
It was all in the spring,
In April, in May, and in June likewise,
When small birds they do sing.
- 2 My garden is well planted
With flowers everywhere;
I have not liberty to choose for myself,
The flowers that I love so dear.
- 3 My gardener stood by me,
I asked him to choose for me,
He chose for me the violet, the lily, and the pink,
But those I refused all three.
- 4 The violet I forsook,
Because it faded so soon,
The lily and the pink I did overlook,
And vowed I'd stay till June.
- 5 In June there's a red rosebud,
And that's the flower for me,
For often I have plucked the red rosebud
Till I gained the willow-tree.
- 6 The willow-tree will twist,
And the willow-tree will twine,
I wish I was in that young man's arms,
That had this heart of mine!
- 7 My gardener stood by,
And told me to take great care,
For in the middle of a red rosebud
There grows a sharp thorn there.
- 8 I told him I'd take great care,
Till I did feel the smart,
For often have I plucked at the red rosebud,
Till it pierced me to the heart.
- 9 I'll make a posy of hyssop,
No other can I touch,
That all the world may plainly see
I loved one flower too much.
- 10 My garden is run over,
Where shall I plant anew?
For my bed that once was covered with thyme
Is all overrun with rue.
- 11 I locked my garden gate,
And resolved to keep the key,
But a young man came a-courting me,
And stole my liberty.
- 12 Come you false young man,
Who left me to complain,
The grass that's trodden under foot
In time will grow again.

- 1 'Tis of a fair damsel in London did dwell,
A-waiting in her beauty, which none there could excel,
Her master and her mistress she servèd seven year,
And what follows after you soon shall quickly bear.
- 2 She packed up her box with her red cloak and gown,
She packed up her box all to leave London town,
Her red cloak and gown, and the rest of her clothes,
And with her box upon her head from service she goes.
- 3 She put her box upon her head, and carried it along,
The first that she met was an able man and strong,
He said, "My pretty fair maid, pray will you come with me,
And I'll put you in a nearer way across this country?"
- 4 He took her by the hand, and he led to a lane,
He said, "My pretty fair maid, I'll tell you plump and plain,
Deliver up your money without fear or strife,
Or else this very moment I'll take away your life."
- 5 The tears from her eyes like two fountains did flow,
Saying, "Where shall I wander, or where shall I go?"
And while this young fellow was feeling for his knife,
This beautiful damsel she took away his life.
- 6 She put her box upon her head, and with it trudged along,
The next that she met was a noble gentleman,
He said, "My pretty fair maid, where are you going so late,
Or what was that noise that I heard at yonder gate?"
- 7 "That box upon your head to yourself does not belong,
To your master or your mistress you have done something wrong,
To your master or your mistress you have done something ill,
For one moment from trembling you cannot keep still."
- 8 "This box upon my head to myself it does belong,
To my master and my mistress I have done nothing wrong;
To my master and my mistress I have done nothing ill,
But I fear in my heart that a young man I did kill."
- 9 "He demanded my money, and I soon let him know,
For while he was fumbling I proved his overthrow;"
She took him by the hand and led him to the place
Where this able young fellow lay bleeding on his face.
- 10 This gentleman got off his horse to see what he had got;
He had three loaded pistols, some powder, and some shot,
Beside three loaded pistols, some powder, and some ball,
A knife, and a whistle some robbers for to call.
- 11 He put the whistle to his mouth, and he blew it loud and shrill,
Then four stout and able fellows came tripping o'er the hill;
This gentlemen shot one of them, and that most speedily,
And this beautiful young damsel she shot the other three.
- 12 When this noble gentleman saw all the robbers dead,
He took the damsel by the hand, and thus to her he said,
"I'll take you for my own bride, for the deed that you have done,
In taking of your own part, and firing off your gun."

(Words and tune from Mrs. Wilson.)

Lord Bateman.

[NORTHAMPTONSHIRE.]

L. E. B.

1. Lord

Bate-man was a no-ble lord, A no-ble lord of high de-gree, He shipped him-self . . . on board a ship, . . . Some for-eign coun-try he would go see.

- 1 LORD BATEMAN was a noble lord,
A noble lord of high degree;
He shipped himself on board a ship,
Some foreign country he would go see.
- 2 He sailèd east, he sailèd west,
Until he came to proud Turkey,
Where he was taken into prison,
Until of his life he was quite weary.
- 3 In this prison there grew a tree,
It grew so stout, it grew so strong;
And he was chained all by the middle
Until his life was almost gone.
- 4 The turnkey* had one only daughter,
The fairest that all eyes did see;
She stole the keys of her father's prison,
And said Lord Bateman she would set free.

* Or, "The Turk, he."

- 5 "Have you got houses, have you got land,
Does half Northumberland belong to you?
What would you give to that fair young lady
That out of prison would set you free?"
- 6 "I have got houses, I have got land,
And half Northumberland belongs to me;
All this I would give to the fair young lady
That out of prison would set me free."
- 7 She took him to her father's hall,
And gave to him the best of wine;
And all the healths she drank with him,
"I wish, Lord Bateman, that you was mine."
- 8 "Seven years I will make a vow,
Seven years I will keep it strong;
If you will wed with no other woman,
I will wed with no other man."
- 9 Seven years been gone and past,
And fourteen days to keep it strong,
She packed up all her gay clothing,
And said, Lord Bateman she would go see.
- 10 And when she came to Lord Bateman's castle,
There she boldly rang the bell;
"Who's there, who's there?" cried the proud young porter,
"Who's there I pray now unto me tell."
- 11 "Is this, is this Lord Bateman's castle?
And is his lordship here within?"
"O yes, it is Lord Bateman's castle,
And he's just now returned with a new bride in."
- 12 "Tell him to send me a slice of bread
And a bottle of the best wine;
And not to forget the fair young lady
That did release him when close confined."
- 13 Away, away went this proud young porter,
Away, away, away went he;
Until he came to Lord Bateman's chamber,
Then on his bended knees fell he.
- 14 "What news, what news have you, my porter,
What news have you brought unto me?"
"There is one of the fairest creatures
That ever my two eyes did see."
- 15 "She has got rings on every finger,
And on one she has got three;
She's as much gay gold all about her middle
As would buy half Northumberlee."
- 16 She bids you send her a slice of bread,
And a bottle of the best wine;
And not to forget that fair young lady
Who did release you when close confined."
- 17 Then up and spoke the young bride's mother,
That was never heard to speak so free;
"You'll not forget my only daughter,
If so Sophia has crossed the sea."
- 18 Lord Bateman then flew in a passion,
And broke his sword in splinters three
"She came to me with horse and saddle,
And she may go back with coach and three."
- 19 Then he prepared another wedding,
With both their hearts so full of glee;
"I'll give up all my father's riches,
If so Sophia has crossed the sea."

(Tune from Mrs. Wilson.)

The first system of the score features a vocal line in treble clef and a piano accompaniment in grand staff (treble and bass clefs). The key signature is one flat (B-flat) and the time signature is 3/4. The vocal line begins with a whole rest, followed by a half note G4, a quarter note A4, and a quarter note B4. The piano accompaniment starts with a half note G3 in the bass and a half note B3 in the treble, followed by a series of eighth and sixteenth notes.

The third system continues the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line has a half note G4, a quarter note A4, a quarter note B4, a half note C5, a quarter note B4, a quarter note A4, and a quarter note G4. The piano accompaniment includes a dynamic marking of f (forte) and features a more active bass line with eighth notes.

The fourth system concludes the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line has a half note G4, a quarter note A4, a quarter note B4, a half note C5, a quarter note B4, a quarter note A4, and a quarter note G4. The piano accompaniment ends with a final chord in both hands.

- 1 'Twas early one morning at the break of the day,
The cocks they were crowing, and the farmer did say,
"Come, arise, my jolly fellows, come, arise with good will,
For your horses want something their bellies to fill."
- 2 When four o'clock came, my boys, up we did rise,
And off to the stable we merrily flies,
With rubbing and scrubbing our horses we go,
For we're all jolly fellows that follows the plough.
- 3 When six o'clock came, boys, at breakfast we met,
With cold beef and pork we heartily ate,
With a piece in our pocket I'll swear and I'll vow,
For we're all jolly fellows that follows the plough.
- 4 Our master came to us, and thus he did say,
"What have you been doing, boys, all this long day?
You've not ploughed your acre, I'll swear and I'll vow,
You are all lazy fellows that follows the plough."
- 5 Our carter turns round, and he thus makes reply:
"We have all ploughed our acre, you have told us a lie,
We have all ploughed our acre, I'll swear and I'll vow,
We are all jolly fellows that follows the plough."
- 6 The master turned round, and he laughed at the joke;
"It is past two o'clock, boys, it is time to unyoke:
Unharness your horses and rub them down well,
Then I'll give you a jug of my very best ale."
- 7 So all you young men, wheresoever you be,
Come take this advice, and be rulèd by me,
Never fear your good master, wherever you go,
We are all jolly fellows that follows the plough.

(The words, which may be found on ballad sheets, from a gardener's boy in Berkshire; the tune from Mr. Bennell. A correspondent from Berkshire gives the tune of "Villikins and his Dinah" as another to these words, and to that tune it is also sung in Surrey. The following tune comes from Hampshire, and, is interesting from its shewing traces of the Dorian mode:—

We are all jol - ly fel - lows that fol - low the plough.

Now harvest's done and ended, the corn secure from harm,
 All for to go to market, boys, we must thresh in the barn.

Chorus.—With the good old leathern bottle, and the beer it shall be brown,
 We'll reap and skip together, boys, till bright Phœbus does go down.

Here's a health to all you farmers, likewise to all you men,
 I wish you health and happiness till harvest comes again.

Chorus.—With the good old leathern bottle, and the beer it shall be brown,
 We'll reap and skip together, boys, till bright Phœbus does go down.

The tune, first verse and part of second, from Mr. Bennell; the remainder from Mr. Heywood Sumner's "Besom Maker." The words are given again as "The Reaphook and the Sickle" (Hampshire, p. 148.)

* The Symphony is the same as the last four bars of Chappell's tune (see next page), and is introduced to show the D sharp in that version.

The musical score consists of two systems. The first system features a vocal line in the treble clef with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a common time signature. The lyrics 'by his dai - ly la - bour he pro - vid - ed . . . for them all.' are written below the notes. The piano accompaniment is shown in two staves: the right hand in the treble clef and the left hand in the bass clef. The second system continues the piano accompaniment, with the vocal line being a whole rest.

- 1 'Tis of a bold thresherman lived down the country side,
Who for his wife and family daily did provide,
He'd sixteen in his family, and most of them were small;
And by his daily labour he provided for them all.
- 2 As this poor man was returning from his labour one day,
He met a wealthy squire, who thus to him did say;
"O thresherman! O thresherman! will you kindly tell to me
How you maintain your wife, and your large family?"
- 3 "I arise, Sir, every morning, at the break of the day,
I work like a slave, all for the smallest of pay,
And from hedging or from ditching to the milking of a cow,
There's nothing comes amiss to me from the harrow to the plough
- 4 "When I go home at night, Sir, as tired as can be,
The youngest of my family he sits upon my knee;
And all the rest come prattling round me as I sing with joy,
And this is all the comfort that a poor man can enjoy.
- 5 "There's my wife, gentle creature, as faithful as can be,
We live like two turtledoves, and never disagree.
But still the times grow harder, and I am very poor,
I hardly know how to keep the wolf from the door."
- 6 "Now since you have spoken so well of your wife,
I'll make you live happy the rest of your life,
Here's sixty acres of good land I'll freely give to thee,
To maintain your wife and your large family."

(Words and tune from Mr. R. Bennell.)

A version of the words called "The Nobleman and the Thresherman" is in Bell's Songs of the Peasantry. See also Sussex Songs, where another tune is given. Chappell, in Popular Music of the Olden Time, gives a tune similar to this, as "We are poor frozen-out gardeners." This tune is a variant of "Lazarus," given under Middlesex, p. 102 for notes on similar tunes, see under "Cold blows the wind" (Shropshire), p. 34.

Bedlam City.

J. A. F. M.

The musical score is written in common time (C) with a key signature of one flat (Bb). It consists of a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The tempo is marked 'Andante'. The score is divided into two systems. The first system shows the beginning of the piece with a piano (p) dynamic. The second system contains the lyrics: 'Bed-lam Ci-ty Once I heard a maid complain, Making her moans and sad lamenta-tions, "I've lost my joy and my on-ly swain. Bil-ly's the lad that I do ad-mire, Bil-ly's the lad that I do adore, Now for him his love's a-dy-ing For fear she'd ne-ver see him more."' The piano accompaniment features a steady bass line and chords that support the vocal melody. Dynamics include piano (p) and pianissimo (pp).

1 Down by the side of Bedlam City
 Once I heard a maid complain,
 Making her moans and sad lamentations,
 "I've lost my joy and my only swain.
 Billy's the lad that I do admire,
 Billy's the lad that I do adore,
 Now for him his love's a-dying
 For fear she'd never see him more."

2 "Don't you hear the cannons rattle?
 Don't you hear the trumpets sound?
 Billy is a-dying in the midst of the battle,
 Dying of his bleeding wound.
 Don't you see my Billy coming?
 Don't you see in yonder cloud?
 Billy with the angels round him,
 Billy in his bloody shroud!"

(Words and tune from Mr. F. Scarlett Potter, Halford, Shipston-on-Stow.)

This is evidently but a fragment of a longer ballad. The tune is a little like "Billy Taylor."

Ped. * Ped. *

The fourth system of the musical score. The vocal line concludes with the lyrics 'what was there to make her sad?—The gate was there, but not the lad; Which'. The piano accompaniment concludes with similar markings and pedal indications.

The musical score is written in G major (one sharp) and 3/4 time. It consists of a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line begins with the lyrics: "made poor Ma - ry say and sigh, 'Was ev - er poor girl so used as I?'" The piano accompaniment features a melody in the right hand and a bass line in the left hand. Dynamics include cres. (crescendo) and dim. (diminuendo). The score is divided into two systems, with the second system continuing the piano accompaniment.

- 1 THE day was gone, the moon shone bright,
 The village clock struck eight,
 Young Mary hastened with delight
 Unto the garden gate.
 But what was there to make her sad?—
 The gate was there, but not the lad;
 Which made poor Mary say and sigh,
 "Was ever poor girl so used as I?"
- 2 She waited here, she waited there,
 The village clock struck nine;
 Which made poor Mary to sigh and to swear
 "You shan't, you shan't be mine;
 You promised to meet me here at eight,
 You have deceived me and made me wait,
 But I'll let all such sweethearts see
 They never shall make a fool of me."
- 3 She traced the garden here and there,
 The village clock struck ten,
 When William caught her in his arms,
 Oh ne'er to part again.
 For he had been for the ring that day
 Which took him from home such a long, long way,
 Then how could Mary cruel prove
 To banish the lad she so dearly did love?
- 4 Up with the morning sun they rose
 To church they went away,
 And all the village joyful were,
 Upon their wedding-day.
 Now in a cot by a river side,
 William and Mary both reside;
 And she blesses the night that she did wait
 For her absent swain at the garden gate.

(Words and tune from Mr. F. Scarlett Potter, Halford, Shipston-on-Stow.)

A version is given in Bell's Songs of the Peasantry, and may be found on ballad sheets.

The lyrics are 'For a maid, a maid I shall nev-er be, Till apples grow on an o-range-tree.'. The piano accompaniment features a prominent bass line.

- 1 O FATHER, father, come build me a boat,
That on this wild ocean I may float,
And every ship that I chance to meet
I will enquire for my William sweet.
- 2 I had not sailed more than half an hour
Before I met with a man on board (man of war ?)
" Kind captain, captain, come tell me true,

- 3 "Oh no, fine lady, he is not here,
That he is drownèd most breaks my fear,*
For the other night when the wind blew high
That's when you lost your sweet sailor boy."
- 4 I'll set me down, and I'll write a song,
I'll write it neat, and I'll write it long,
And at every word I will drop a tear,
And in every line I'll set my Willie dear.
- 5 I wish, I wish, but it's all in vain,
I wish I was a sweet maid again,
But a maid, a maid I never shall be
Till apples grow on an orange-tree.
For a maid, a maid I shall never be,
Till apples grow on an orange-tree.

Words and tune, with notes, from Mrs. Harley, Bewdley.)

This song is a great favourite with the boys of Bewdley, who can give no account of it, except that "there was an old man as used to sing it." The best singer when he has ended the song always turns to the audience, remarking emphatically "Till apples grows on an orange-tree," probably the usual custom of the old ballad-singers

In a version sent from Masham, Yorkshire, in which the name is "Poor Sally," &c., the last verse runs thus:—

"So now we've got a ship across, ship across, ship across,
So now we've got a ship across, on a bright shiny day."

The Three Dukes.

(CHILDREN'S CHOOSING GAME.)

L. E. B.

The musical score is written in G major (one sharp) and 2/4 time. It consists of three systems of music. The first system shows the beginning of the piece with a treble clef and a piano introduction in the left hand. The tempo is marked 'Allegro moderato.' and the dynamics range from mf to f. The lyrics '1. Here come three dukes a -' are written below the first staff. The second system continues the melody with lyrics 'rid - ing, a - rid - ing, a - rid - ing, Here come three dukes a - rid - ing, Ran-sam,'. The third system concludes the piece with lyrics 'tan - sam, ti - sam, tee.' and includes a rit. (ritardando) marking.

- Duke. 1 Here come three dukes a-riding, a-riding, a-riding,
Here come three dukes a-riding,
Ransam, tansam, tisam, tee.
- Children. 2 Pray, what is your good will, Sir, &c.
- Duke. 3 My will is for to marry, &c.
- Children. 4 Pray, whom will you marry, &c.
- Duke. 5 You're all too black and brown for me, &c.
- Children. 6 We're quite as white as you, Sir, &c.
- Duke. 7 You're all as stiff as pokers, &c.
- Children. 8 We can bend as well as you, Sir, &c.
- Duke. 9 Go through the kitchen and through the hall,
And take the fairest of them all.
The fairest one that I can see
Is (Jemima Spriggins,*) so come to me.

(Words from Mrs. Lawson, Upton-on-Severn.)

In this choosing game one child, representing the duke, advances towards a line of children who hold hands and walk backwards and forwards in front of him. He names the child he wishes for, who takes his hand and joins him in his song. In most versions the duke sings "Go through the kitchen," &c. to the tune of "Nancy Dawson," better known as "Here we go round the mulberry bush." The game goes on till all the children are won over to the duke's side. The above tune is that sung in many counties to these words; a version is given in the Hon. E. M. Plunket's Merric Games in Rhyme. A very elaborate form of the game is sent from Masham, Yorkshire, in which the whole thing is gone through, first with one duke, then with two, and lastly with three. After choosing the child by name, the dialogue, "I will buy thee a watch and chain" (See "I will give you the keys of heaven." Cheshire, p. 32), is gone through, as far as the offers are concerned, the chosen child replying "No" to each.

1 WE shepherds are the best of men,
That e'er trod English ground;
When we come to an alehouse
We value not a crown.
We spend our money freely,
We pay before we go;
There's no ale on the wolds
Where the stormy winds do blow.

Chorus.—We spend, &c.

2 A man that is a shepherd
Does need a valiant heart,
He must not be faint-hearted,
But boldly do his part.
He must not be faint-hearted,
Be it rain, or frost, or snow,
With no ale on the wolds
Where the stormy winds do blow.

Chorus.—He must not, &c.

3 When I kept sheep on Blockley Hills
It made my heart to ache
To see the ewes hang out their tongues
And hear the lambs to bleat;
Then I plucked up my courage
And o'er the hills did go,
And penned them in the fold
While the stormy winds did blow.

Chorus.—Then I plucked up, &c.

4 As soon as I had folded them
I turned me back in haste
Unto a jovial company
Good liquor for to taste;
For drink and jovial company
They are my heart's delight,
Whilst my sheep lie asleep
All the fore-part of the night.

Chorus.—For drink and jovial company, &c.

(From F. Scarlett Potter, Esq., Halford, Shipton-on-Stour.)

The first verse was taken from the recitation of a lady born at Stoke, Gloucestershire, in 1793; the remaining verses were recovered from Thomas Coldicote, shepherd, of Ebrington, Gloucestershire. Blockley, referred to in verse 3. is in the parish adjoining Ebrington. Possibly it was usual for the singer to fill in a local name in this place,

- 1 As it fell out upon one day,
Rich Diverus he made a feast;
And he invited all his friends,
And gentry of the best.
And it fell out upon one day,
Poor Lazarus he was so poor,
He came and laid him down and down,
Ev'n down at Diverus' door.
- 2 So Lazarus laid him down and down,
Ev'n down at Diverus' door;
"Some meat, some drink, brother Diverus,
Do bestow upon the poor."
"Thou art none of mine, brother Lazarus,
Lying begging at my door,
No meat, no drink will I give thee,
Nor bestow upon the poor."
- 3 Then Lazarus laid him down and down,
Ev'n down at Diverus' wall;
"Some meat, some drink, brother Diverus,
Or surely starve I shall."
"Thou art none of mine, brother Lazarus,
Lying begging at my wall;
No meat, no drink will I give thee,
And therefore starve thou shall."
- 4 Then Lazarus laid him down and down,
Ev'n down at Diverus' gate;
"Some meat, some drink, brother Diverus,
For Jesus Christ his sake."

- "Thou art none of mine, brother Lazarus,
Lying begging at my gate,
No meat, no drink will I give thee,
For Jesus Christ his sake."
- 5 Then Diverus sent his merry men all,
To whip poor Lazarus away;
They had not power to whip one whip,
But threw their whips away.
Then Diverus sent out his hungry dogs,
To bite poor Lazarus away;
They had not power to bite one bite,
But licked his sores away.
- 6 And it fell out upon one day,
Poor Lazarus he sickened and died;
There came two angels out of heaven,
His soul thereto to guide.
"Rise up, rise up, brother Lazarus,
And come along with me,
There is a place prepared in heaven,
For to sit upon an angel's knee."
- 7 And it fell out upon one day,
Rich Diverus sickened and died;
There came two serpents out of hell
His soul thereto to guide.
"Rise up, rise up, brother Diverus,
And come along with me;
There is a place prepared in hell,
For to sit upon a serpent's knee."

(The tune noted by A. J. Hipkins, Esq., F.S.A., in Westminster; the words from Notes and Queries, Ser. 4, vol. iii., 76.)

It is not claimed that these words belong to the beautiful tune here given, but they suit it so well that there is a great probability of their having at one time been associated together. Mr. Hipkins knew no words for the tune, but has known it for many years under the name "Lazarus;" it was also recognized as the tune belonging to a song referring to the same subject, by an old woman in Westminster, in December, 1892. The last verse is quoted by Hone (Every Day Book, vol. i., p. 1598) as being still sung in 1826 in Warwickshire. The writer in Notes and Queries who gives it in extenso, as above, calls it a Worcestershire Carol. See also Husk's Songs of the Nativity, "Dives and Lazarus," where three more stanzas are given. In the above version the form Diverus is always sung; and the same form is alluded to in Fletcher's Monsieur Thomas (1639). In Beaumont and Fletcher's Nice Valour, act iv., sc. 1, "Dives" is spoken of as one of the ballads hanging at church corners. The tune should be compared with "The Thresher" (p. 68), and with "Cold blows the wind" (p. 34), as well as with "We are frozen-out gardeners," in Chappell's Popular Music. The tune strongly resembles "Gilderoy," see notes to "Cold blows the wind" (p. 34).

(From an old servant in Miss Margaret Collyer's family.)

The tune is the regular formula for games of this kind, but its second part seems to be a reflection of "Malbrook." Interesting variants of the words are to be found in Chamber's Popular Rhymes of Scotland, Halliwell's Nursery Rhymes of Scotland, &c.

MAY-DAY SONG.

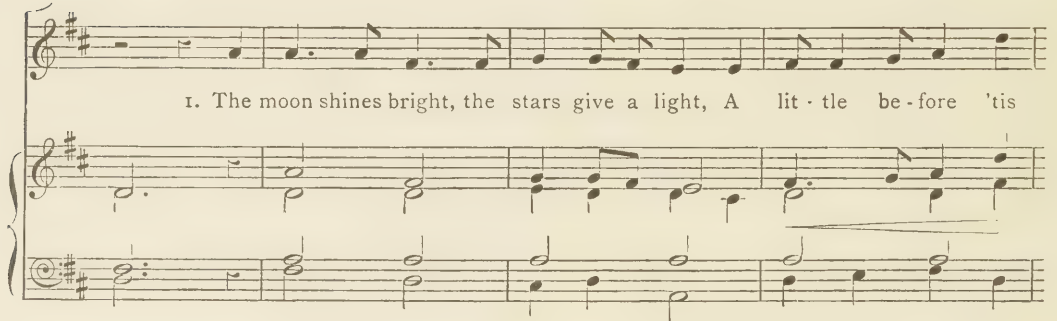

L. E. B.

Andante.

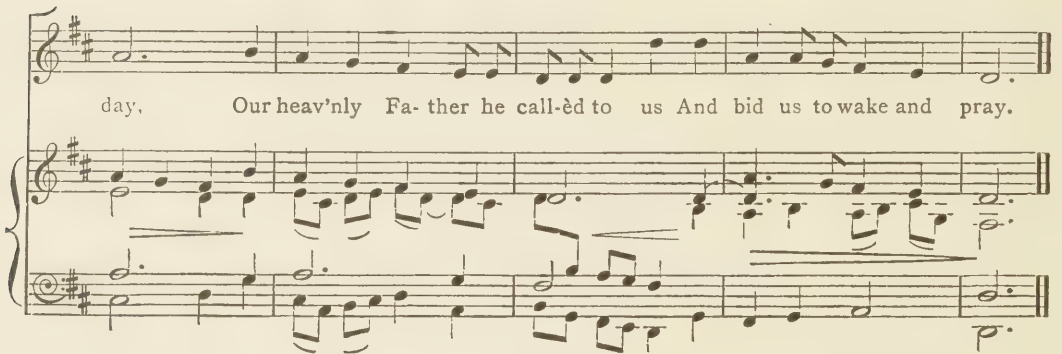

The piano introduction consists of two staves. The right hand plays a melody of eighth and quarter notes in a major key with one sharp (F#). The left hand provides a simple harmonic accompaniment with chords and single notes.

1. The moon shines bright, the stars give a light, A lit - tle be - fore 'tis

The first line of the song features a vocal melody on a treble clef staff and a piano accompaniment on a grand staff. The lyrics are: "1. The moon shines bright, the stars give a light, A lit - tle be - fore 'tis".

day, Our heav'nly Fa - ther he call - èd to us And bid us to wake and pray.

The second line of the song continues the vocal melody and piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "day, Our heav'nly Fa - ther he call - èd to us And bid us to wake and pray."

The moon shines bright, the stars give a light,
*A little before 'tis day,
Our heavenly Father he callèd to us
And bid us to wake and pray.

Awake, awake, oh pretty, pretty maid,
Out of your drowsy dream,
And step into your dairy below
And fetch me a bowl of cream :

3.

If not a bowl of your sweet cream
A mug of your brown beer,
For the Lord knows where we shall meet again
To be maying another year.

* In some versions, " In a little while it will be day "

So dear, so dear Christ lovèd us
 And for our sins was slain,
 He bids us to leave off our wicked, wicked ways.
 And turn to the Lord again.

Turn to the Lord and our sweet God.
 O turn to him with praise,
 For when we are dead and in our graves
 We are nothing but dust and clay.

I have been rambling all this night
 And best part of this day,
 And now have returnèd back again,
 And have brought you a branch of may.

7.

A branch of may have I brought you
 And at your door it stands,
 It is but a sprout, but well budded out
 By the work of our Lord's hand.

My song is done and I must be gone,
 No longer can I stay,
 So it's God bless you all, both great and small
 And send you a joyful May.

The above tune was sung, to similar words, by Mrs. Marshall, King's Langley. The words here given were sung by Thomas Gray, at Weston, near Hitchin, but to the following tune :—

Compare the "Hitchin May-day song," given in Hone's Every Day Book, i. 567, and Chambers' Book of Days. Also Chappell, Popular Music, p. 753, and Baring Gould's Songs of the West, Bell's Songs of the Peasantry, Chappell's Christmas Carols, Sussex Songs, etc. A Northamptonshire version is sung to part of the tune "Brighton Camp," known as "The girl I left behind me;" and in Northamptonshire Notes and Queries for July 1886 and April 1887, there is a tune given to these words, which does not however seem to be genuinely old. A version repeated at Letchworth Rectory in 1883, is given in the Folk-Lore Journal, iii. 185, and the words of a version sung at Tilsworth, Bedfordshire, are given in the Bedfordshire Times and Independent for June 4, 1881. An incomplete Essex version will be found on p. 98.

As I sat on a Sunny Bank.

(CAROL.)

L. E. B.

The musical score is written in 6/8 time with a key signature of one flat (Bb). It consists of three systems. The first system shows the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The piano part is marked 'Tranquillo' and 'p'. The lyrics 'i. As I sat on a' are placed under the vocal line. The second system continues the vocal line with the lyrics 'sun - ny bank, a sun - ny bank, a sun - ny bank, As I sat on a sun - ny bank, On' and the piano accompaniment. The third system concludes with the lyrics 'Christmas Day in the morn - ing.' and the piano accompaniment.

- 1 As I sat on a sunny bank, a sunny bank, a sunny bank,
 As I sat on a sunny bank,
 On Christmas Day in the morning.
- 2 I saw three ships come sailing in, &c.
- 3 I askèd them what they had in, &c.
- 4 They said they had the Saviour in, &c.
- 5 I askèd them where they found Him, &c.
- 6 They said they found Him in Bethlehem, &c.
- 7 Now all the bells on earth shall ring, &c.
- 8 And all the angels in Heaven shall sing, &c

(From Mrs. Wilson, near King's Langley.)

The words in italics are used for the short repetitions, after which the whole line is repeated, and the burden "On Christmas Day in the morning" closes each verse. The words of this Carol are well known, and are included in many collections of Christmas Carols, such as Sandys, Husk, &c.

out of the prick - ly bush, I'll nev-er get in.. an - y more."

The musical score consists of three staves. The top staff is a single treble clef line with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a common time signature. The middle and bottom staves are grouped by a brace on the left and represent a piano accompaniment in G major and common time. The lyrics are written below the first staff.

- 1 "O HANGMAN, hold thy hand," he cried,
"O hold thy hand awhile;
For I can see my own dear father
Coming over yonder stile.
- 2 "O father, have you brought me gold?
Or will you set me free?
Or be you come to see me hung,
All on this high gallows tree?"
- 3 "No, I have not brought thee gold,
And I will not set thee free;
But I am come to see thee hung,
All on this high gallows tree."

Chorus. "Oh the prickly bush, the prickly bush,
It pricked my heart full sore;
If ever I get out of the prickly bush,
I'll never get in any more."

The above is repeated three times more, with the successive substitution of "mother," "brother," "sister," for "father." Then the first two verses are repeated with "sweetheart" in this place, and for the third verse the following is sung:—

- 3 "Yes, I have brought thee gold," she cried,
"And I will set thee free;
And I am come, but not to see thee hung,
All on this high gallows tree."
"Oh the prickly bush," &c.

The words and tune as they stand here, are given by Mr. Heywood Sumner, and belong properly to Somersetshire. In Notes and Queries, Ser. 6, vii., 275, the Precentor of Lincoln (the Rev. Edmund Venables), gives a version of the words, which he learnt from a Buckinghamshire nurse. The scheme is precisely the same, but the words of the opening verse are as follows:—

- 1 "Hold up thy hand, most righteous judge,
Hold up thy hand awhile;
For here I see my own dear father
Come tumbling over the stile.
- 2 "O hast thou brought me silver or gold,
Or jewels to set me free,
Or hast thou come to see me hung?
For hangèd I shall be.
- 3 "If I could get out of this prickly bush
That prickles my heart so sore;
If I could get out of this prickly bush
I'd never get in no more."

Lines 1 and 3 of the last verse run "Now I have got out of this prickly bush"

For other versions of this song, see Child's Ballads.

El Dashing young Lad from Buckingham. [BUCKINGHAMSHIRE.]

J. A. F. M.

The first system of music consists of a vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line is in treble clef with a key signature of three sharps (F#, C#, G#) and a 6/8 time signature. It begins with a whole rest followed by a quarter note G5, a quarter note A5, and a quarter note B5. The piano accompaniment is in grand staff (treble and bass clefs) with the same key signature and time signature. It starts with a forte (f) dynamic and an Allegro. tempo marking. The right hand plays a rhythmic pattern of eighth notes, while the left hand provides a bass line with dotted rhythms.

I. A

The second system of music continues the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line has the lyrics: "dashing young lad from Buckingham Once a great wa-ger did lay . . . That he'd". The piano accompaniment continues with the same rhythmic and harmonic patterns as the first system.

The third system of music continues the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line has the lyrics: "pass all the watchmen in Lon - don But de-vil a word would he say. . . But". The piano accompaniment continues with the same rhythmic and harmonic patterns.

The fourth system of music concludes the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line has the lyrics: "still he'd sing, Fol de rol id - dle ol; Still he'd sing, Fol de rol lay; . .". The piano accompaniment continues with the same rhythmic and harmonic patterns, ending with a fermata over the final chord.

The fourth system concludes the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "cause of all her woe, As you soon shall hear, this maiden fair did prove his o-ver-throw."

- 1 It's of a farmer's daughter, so beautiful I'm told;
Her parents died and left her five hundred pounds in gold;
She lived with her uncle, the cause of all her woe,
As you soon shall hear, this maiden fair did prove his overthrow

- 2 Her uncle had a ploughboy, young Mary loved full well;
And in her uncle's garden their tales of love would tell;
But there was a wealthy squire who oft came her to see,
Yet still she loved her ploughboy on the banks of the sweet Dundee.

- 3 Her uncle rose one morning and early went straightway,
And knocking at the bedroom door, he unto her did say:—
"Come, rise up, pretty maiden, a lady you might be,
The squire's a-waiting for you on the banks of the sweet Dundee.

- 4 "A fig for all your squires, your lords and dukes likewise,
My William's hand appears to me like diamonds in my eyes; '
"Begone, unruly female, you ne'er shall happy be,
For I mean to banish William from the banks of the sweet Dundee."

- 5 Her uncle and the squire was a-walking out next day,
"Young William is in favour," her uncle he did say;
"But indeed it's my intention to tie him to a tree,
Or else to bribe the pressgang on the banks of the sweet Dundee."

- 6 The pressgang come to William when he was all alone,
He boldly fought for liberty, but they was six to one;
The blood did flow in torrents, "Pray kill me now," said he,
I'd rather die for Mary on the banks of the sweet Dundee."

- 7 The maid next day was walking, lamenting for her love,
She met with the wealthy squire, down in her uncle's grove;
He clasped his arms all round her,—"Stand off, base man," said she,
'Twas you that bribed the pressgang on the banks of the sweet Dundee."

- 8 He clasped his arms all round her, and tried to throw her down,
Two pistols and a sword she spied beneath his morning gown;
Young Mary took the pistols, the sword he used so free,
But she did fire, and shot the squire, on the banks of the sweet Dundee.

- 9 Her uncle overheard the noise and hastened to the ground;
"Since you have killed the squire, I'll give you your death-wound."
"Stand off," then said young Mary, undaunted I will be,—
She the trigger drew, and her uncle slew, on the banks of the sweet Dundee.

- 10 The doctor then was sent for, a man of noted skill,
Likewise came the lawyer, for him to sign his will;
He willed his gold to Mary, who fought so manfully,
Then he closed his eyes, no more to rise, by the banks of the sweet Dundee.

(Words and tune from Mark Wyatt, Enborne.)

Versions of this ballad, sometimes called "The Banks of the Sweet Dundee," "Undaunted Mary," or "The Undaunted Female," occur in many collections; that in Barrett's collection is nearly identical with this, but is set to a very poor tune. See Kidson's Traditional Tunes, and in the Crampton Collection in the British Museum. A slightly different version of this tune is given as a Somersetshire tune, by Heywood Sumner, Esq. See another version in triple time, to "The Painful Plough," p. 126

If thou'lt fetch me back to my vather again,"
(And I'll be true to my love if my love'll be true to me).
- 10 The miller he took her guineas ten,
(With a hey down, bow down :)
And he pushed the fair maid in again,
(And I'll be true to my love, if my love'll be true to me).
- 11 But the Crowner he came, and the Justice too,
(With a hey down, bow down :)
With a hue and a cry and a hullabaloo,
(And I'll be true to my love, if my love'll be true to me).
- 12 They hanged the miller beside his own gate,
(With a hey down, bow down :)
For drowning the varmer's daughter Kate,
(And I'll be true to my love, if my love'll be true to me).
- 13 The sister she fled beyond the seas,
(With a hey down, bow down :)
And died an old maid among black savagees,
(And I'll be true to my love, if my love'll be true to me).
- 14 So I've ended my tale of the West Countree,
(With a hey down, bow down :)
And they calls it the Barkshire Tragedee,
(And I'll be true to my love, if my love'll be true to me).

(The tune from G. K. Fortescue, Esq. ; the words from The Scouring of the White Horse.)

This is one of the very many variants of the ballad usually known as "Binnorie," which appears in different forms in many countries. The peculiarities of the English ballad are the presence of a third sister, not required by the story; the fact that the maiden was alive when she reached the mill; the brutal cruelty of the miller; the Crowner; the fate of the miller, and the horrible ending of the elder sister. In The Scouring of the White Horse, there is another ballad, which takes up the story at the point where the harper discovers the body and strings his harp with the maiden's hair. In this instance, the instrument is a "fiddoll," and the process of stringing is described most realistically. A Lancashire version is given in Ballads and Songs of Lancashire, by John Harland; another occurs in a broadsheet of 1656, and is said to be by Dr. James Smith (1604-1667); it is called "The King and the Miller's Daughter." The second system continues the musical notation. The vocal line has a long note on "be" followed by a series of eighth notes. The piano accompaniment continues with similar rhythmic patterns.

- 1 THE sun went down beyond yon hill, across yon dreary moor ;
Weary and lame a boy there came up to the farmer's door ;
"Can you tell me if any there be, that will give me employ,
For to plough and sow, for to reap and mow, and be a farmer's boy ?"
- 2 "My father's dead and mother's left with her five children small ;
And what is worse for my mother still, I'm the oldest of them all ;
Though little I am, I fear no work, if you'll give me employ,
For to plough and sow, for to reap and mow, and be a farmer's boy.
- 3 "And if that you won't me employ, one favour I've to ask,
Will you shelter me till the break of day from this cold winter's blast ?
At the break of day I'll trudge away, elsewhere to seek employ,
For to plough and sow, for to reap and mow, and be a farmer's boy."
- 4 The farmer said, "I'll try the lad, no further let him seek,"
"Oh, yes! dear father," the daughter said, while tears ran down her cheek ;
For them that will work it's hard to want, and wander for employ
For to plough and sow, for to reap and mow, and be a farmer's boy."
- 5 At length the boy became a man, the good old farmer died ;
He left the lad the farm he had, and his daughter to be his bride ;
And now the lad a farmer is, and he smiles and thinks with joy,
Of the lucky, lucky day, when he came that way, to be a farmer's boy.

(Words and tune from Mark Wyatt, Enborne.)

The above tune is inserted as an illustration of the process of alteration which songs often undergo in transmission. Paxton's original tune to this song may be found, almost note for note, in Barrett's Folk Songs, to the words "Ye Sons of Albion." Barrett, Kidson, and other collections, give various tunes to "The Farmer's Boy," and another will be found under Sussex (p. 134).

THE SWEET NIGHTINGALE.

The musical score is written in G major (one sharp) and 4/4 time. It consists of two systems. The first system features a vocal line for the '1st VOICE' and a piano accompaniment for 'BOTH VOICES AND CHORUS'. The lyrics are: 'sweet, I nev · er heard so sweet as the birds in the Spring.' The piano part includes dynamic markings like '>>' and '<<'. The second system shows the vocal line with rests and the piano accompaniment continuing with a 'mf' dynamic marking.

ONE morning in May by chance I did rove,
 I sat myself down by the side of a grove,
 And there did I hear the sweet nightingale sing,
 I never heard so sweet as the birds in the Spring.

All on the green grass I sat myself down
 Where the voice of the nightingale echoed around;
 Don't you hear how she quivers the notes? I declare
 No music, no songster with her can compare.

Come all you young men, I'll have you draw near,
 I pray you now heed me these words for to hear,
 That when you're grown old you may have it to sing,
 That you never heard so sweet as the birds in the Spring.

Sung by Messrs. Upfold and Stanford, farmers, now dead, at Cranleigh, Surrey. This version noted down from Mr. Grantham, carter, Holmwood, Surrey. It is properly sung by two voices answering each other. Compare with the version in Barrett's Folk Songs.

Detailed description: This system contains the fourth musical notation. The vocal line continues with the lyrics 'clothe your fields with plen - ty, your farm - yards to re - new, For to'. The piano accompaniment is marked 'p'.

The musical score is written for voice and piano. The voice part is on a single staff in G major (one sharp) and 3/4 time. The lyrics are: "crown them with con - tent - ment be - hold the pain - ful plough...". The piano accompaniment consists of two staves (treble and bass clef). The right hand plays a simple melody with eighth and quarter notes, while the left hand provides harmonic support with chords and moving lines. A piano dynamic marking 'p' is present at the beginning of the piano part.

- 1 COME, all you jolly ploughmen, of courage stout and bold,
That labour all the winter, in the stormy winds and cold;
To clothe your fields with plenty, your farmyards to renew,
For to crown them with contentment behold the painful plough.
- 2 Says the gardener to the ploughman, "Don't count your trade with ours,
Walk down in those fair gardens, and view those pretty flowers;
Also those curious borders, and pleasant walks to view,
There's no such peace nor pleasure performèd by the plough."
- 3 Says the ploughman to the gardener, "My calling don't despise,
Each man for his living upon his trade relies;
Were it not for the ploughman both rich and poor would rue,
For we are all dependent upon the painful plough.
- 4 "Adam in the garden was sent to keep it right,
The length of time he stayed there I believe it was one night;
Yet of his own labour I call it not his due,
Soon he left his garden, and went to hold the plough.
- 5 "For Adam was a ploughman when ploughing first begun,
The next that did succeed him was Cain, his eldest son;
Some of the generation this calling now pursue;
That bread may not be wanting, remains the painful plough.
- 6 "Samson was the strongest man, and Solomon was wise,
Alexander, for to conquer was all his daily pride,
King David he was valiant, and many thousands slew,
There's none of your brave heroes can live without the plough.
- 7 "Behold the worthy merchant that sails on foreign seas,
That brings home gold and silver for those who live at ease;
With fine silks and spices, and fruits also, too,
They were all brought from the Indies by the virtue of the plough.
- 8 "Them that brings them over will find what I say true,
You cannot sail the ocean without the painful plough,
For they must have bread, biscuits, rice pudding, flour, and peas,
To feed the jolly sailors as they sails upon the seas."
- 9 I hope there's none offended with me for singing this,
For it was not intended for anything amiss;
If you consider rightly you'll own what I say's true,
There's no trade you can mention as can live without the plough.'

(Words and tune from Mr. Grantham, carter, Holmwood.)

For other versions see Baring Gould's Songs of the West, Barrett's Folk Songs, Bell's Songs of the Peasantry, &c. The tune is virtually identical with that of "The Farmer's Daughter" (p. 116), excepting the rhythm.

The musical score consists of three staves. The top staff is a vocal line in G major, starting with a treble clef and a key signature of one sharp (F#). It begins with a trill (tr) on the first note, followed by a series of eighth and quarter notes. The lyrics 'Flo - ra so great?' are written below the first few notes. The middle staff is a piano accompaniment in G major, starting with a treble clef. It features a rhythmic pattern of eighth and quarter notes, often beamed together. The bottom staff is a piano accompaniment in G major, starting with a bass clef. It features a rhythmic pattern of eighth and quarter notes, often beamed together. The score includes repeat signs and a double bar line at the end of each staff.

- 1 I'LL spread the green branches although I am young ;
So well do I like my love, so sweetly she sung ;
Was there ever man in so happy a state,
As I and my Flora, my Flora, fair Flora so great ?
- 2 I will go to my Flora, and to her I'll say,
"We both will be married, it wants but one day,"
"One day!" says this fair one, "One day is to come!
To be married so early, so early, my age is too young."
- 3 "I will first go to service, and when I return
We both will be married all in the next town."
"Will you first go to service, and leave me to cry?"
"Yes, lovely shepherd, yes, shepherd, I have told you for why."
- 4 As it happened, to service, to service, she went,
To wait on a lady, as was her intent ;
For to wait on a lady, a rich lady gay,
Who clothèd young Flora, young Flora, in costly array.
- 5 In a twelvemonth, or better, a letter I sent,
Three or four lines for to know her intent ;
She wrote that she lived a contented life,
But she never, she never could be a poor shepherd's wife.
- 6 These words and experience they pierced like a dart,
But I'll pluck up my spirits, and cheer up my heart ;
By hoping that thus she may write nevermore,
But let me convince her, convince her, as ofttimes before.
- 7 Now my ewes and my lambs I will bid them adieu,
My hook, crook, and black dog, I'll leave here by you ;
My hook, crook, and black dog I'll leave here behind,
Since Flora, fair Flora, fair Flora, has changèd her mind.

The fourth system concludes the melody and accompaniment. The piano accompaniment consists of chords and single notes in the right and left hands.

The musical score consists of three systems. The first system features a vocal line in G minor with the lyrics: "Joan would get drunk with the men, And Joan would get drunk with the men." Below the vocal line is a piano accompaniment with chords in the right hand and a bass line in the left hand. The second system continues the piano accompaniment. The third system begins with a forte (f) dynamic marking and features a more active piano accompaniment with sixteenth-note patterns in the right hand and a steady bass line in the left hand.

- 1 JOHN APPLEBY was a man's name, he lived near the sign of the Kettle,
His wife she was callèd Joan Quiet, because she could scold but a little;
John to the alehouse would go, Joan to the ginshop would run;
John would get drunk with the women, and Joan would get drunk with the men.
- 2 Now Joan she was no great eater, and John he wasn't a glutton:
And so for to tickle their jaws they bought 'em a shoulder of mutton;
John in an angry mood caught the mutton up in his hand,
And out of the window he threw it while Joan she was at a stand.
- 3 Now Joan she was at a stand, didn't know what to make of the matter,
So catching it up in her hand she after it threw the platter;
An old woman passing by and seeing the mutton there lay,
She caught up both mutton and platter and with it she ran away.
- 4 Now John he had got a full barrel well seasoned with home-grown hops;
And so for to finish the quarrel this question to Joan he pops:
"Shall we spicket the home-brewed, Joan, and all our neighbours regale?
Although we have lost our mutton we have not lost our ale."
- 5 Then the neighbours came flocking in, (O wasn't there just a commotion?)
With "Wastebutt" and most of his kin all aiming to get at the lotion.
They banged the old barrel about and pulled the spicket out too,
Saying "We'll all get drunk to-night, for what have we else to do?"

(From Samuel Willett, Cuckfield, Sussex, who got the song from Kentish hop-pickers.)

This is not improbably a political song, directed against Oliver Cromwell; Kent produced many squibs upon him, in which, besides being called a brewer, he was frequently described as a drunkard, together with his wife, who was nicknamed Joan. Compare this with "Oliver Cromwell" (p. 94).

"O yes, dear child," the farmer cried, for tears stole down her cheek,
"For those who'd work 'tis hard to want, or wander for employ,
To plough and sow, to reap and mow, and be a farmer's boy."
- 5 In course of time he grew a man, the good old farmer died,
He left the lad the farm he had, and daughter for his bride.
The boy that was now farmer is, he smiles and thinks with joy,
Of the lucky day when he came that way to be a farmer's boy.

 It is deckèd up with ivy
 From the top down to the strands.
 There's fine arches, fine porches,
 And there's diamond stones so bright,
 It's a pilot for the sailors
 On a dark and stormy night.

3 At the bottom of the mountain
 There's a river runs so clear,
 And a ship from the West Indies
 Once lay at anchor there;
 With a red flag a-flying
 And the beating of a drum,
 Sweet instruments of music,
 And the firing of a gun.

This system continues the chorus with two variations: '1st.' and '2nd.'. The vocal line includes a triplet of eighth notes. The piano accompaniment features a rhythmic pattern of eighth and sixteenth notes. The system ends with a double bar line and a 6/8 time signature.

Solo. HERE'S a health unto the misteress, the fairest of twenty :

Chorus. O, is she so ? is she so ? is she so ?

Solo. Is your glass full, or is your glass empty ?

Chorus. Come, let us know, let us know, let us know ;

Solo. (Repeat We'll drink him out so deep, and we'll sing ourselves to sleep, for Chorus.) And sing ho, and sing ho, and sing ho !

(Words and tune from John Burberry, gamekeeper, Sept. 1892.)

When sung at harvest homes and the like, the singers, at the words "O is she so?" &c., carry candles up to the mistress as if to investigate her claims to be "the fairest of twenty." Another Sussex version is as follows:—

THE MISTRESS'S HEALTH.

Our mis-tress-'s health we now be-gin, In spite of the Pope and the Span-ish king; For she has got gold and sil-ver in store, And when it has gone she will have some more, So here's to thee, my bro-ther John, 'Tis al-most time that we were gone, We'll smoke, we'll drink, we'll stand our ground, And so let the mis-tress-'s health go round.

This system contains the full musical score for the second version of the song. It consists of five lines of music with lyrics underneath. The key signature is one sharp (F#) and the time signature is 6/8. The piece concludes with a double bar line.

The first two lines imply an Elizabethan origin for this song.

The bobtailed mare bears the bells away;
There is Hey, there is Ree, there is Hoo, there is Gee,
But the bobtailed mare bears the bells away.

Chorus.—Hey, Ree, Hoo, Gee,
But the bobtailed mare bears the bells away.

(Sung by John Burberry, gamekeeper, Sept. 1892.)

"Hey" and "Ree" are right and left respectively; "Who with a hey and ree the beasts command" (Micro-Cynicon, 1599). "Hoo" or "Ho" is the same as "Woa"—stop; "So when they once fall in love there is no Ho with them till they have their love" (Cobbler of Canterburie, 1608). "Gee" is of course "Go on." "Gio" used in this sense is quoted in Dialogus Creaturarum, 1480. In the "Chorus" part, the four names are sung by four of the singers in order, all joining in at "But the bobtailed mare."

- 1 THE sun it goes down, the sky it looks red,
 Down on yonder pillow I lay down my head,
 I lift up my eyes to see the stars shine,
 But still this young damsel she runs in my mind.
- 2 When the sap it goes up the tree it will flaw,*
 We'll first branch him round, boys, and put in the saw;
 But when we have sawed him, and tumbled him down,
 Then we do flaw him, all on the cold ground.
- 3 When flawing is over, haying draws near,
 With our scythes and our pitchforks some grass for to clear:
 But when we have mowed it and carried it away
 We first called it green grass, we now call it hay.
- 4 When haying is over, then harvest draws near,
 We'll send for the brewer, to brew us strong beer;
 To brew us strong beer for the hard working men,
 For they work late and early till harvest does end.
- 5 When the sap it goes down then the leaves they do fall,
 The farmer to his hedging and ditching to call,
 But when it's hard weather there's no working there
 Then into the barn, boys, some corn for to clear.
- 6 When Spring it come on, the maid to her cow,
 The boy to his whip, and the man to his plough,
 And so we bring all things so cheerfully round,
 Success to the ploughman that ploughs up the ground!

The musical score is written for three parts: a vocal line (treble clef), a bass line (bass clef), and a piano accompaniment (grand staff). The key signature is one sharp (F#), and the time signature is common time (C). The lyrics are: "me what may your calling be, Or are you a serv - ing - man? fain, then I will tell you plain, I am a downright hus - band - man."

Servingman.

1 Well met my brother friend, all on the high-way riding,
So simply all alone;
I pray you to tell me what may your calling be,
Or are you a servingman?

Husbandman.

2 O why my brother dear, what makes you to enquire
Of any such thing at my hand?
But since you are so fain, then I will tell you plain,
I am a downright husbandman.

S. 3 If a husbandman you be, then go along with me,
And quickly you shall see out of hand;
Then in a little space, I will help you to a place
Where you may be a servingman.

H. 4 Kind Sir, I 'turn you thanks for your intelligence
These things I receive at your hand;
But something pray now show, that first I may plainly know
The pleasures of a servingman.

S. 5 Why a servingman has pleasure beyond all sort of measure,
With his hawk on his fist as he stands,
For the game that he does kill and the meat that does him fill
Are pleasures for the servingman.

H. 6 And my pleasure's more than that, to see my oxen fat,
And a good stack of hay by them stand;
My ploughing and my sowing, my reaping and my mowing,
Are pleasures for the husbandman.

S. 7 Why, it is a gallant thing to ride out with a king,
With a lord, duke, or any such man;
To hear the horns to blow, and see the hounds all in a row,
That is pleasure for the servingman.

H. 8 But my pleasure's more, I know, to see my corn to grow,
And so thriving all over my land;
And therefore do I mean, with my ploughing, with my team,
To keep myself a husbandman.

S. 9 Why, the diet that we eat is the choicest of all meat,
Such as pig, goose, capon, and swan;
Our pastry is so fine, we drink sugar in our wine,
That is living for the servingman.

H. 10 Talk not of goose or capon, give me good beef or bacon,
And good bread and cheese now and then;
With pudding, brawn, and souse, all in a farmer's house,
That is living for the husbandman.

S. 11 Why, the clothing that we wear is delicate and rare,
With our coat, lace, buckles and band;
Our shirts are white as milk, our stockings they are silk,
That is clothing for the servingman.

H. 12 But I value not a hair for delicate fine wear
Such as gold is lacèd upon;
Give me a good great coat and in my purse a groat,
That is clothing for the husbandman.

S. 13 Kind Sir, it would be bad if none could be had
Those tables for to wait upon;
There is no lord, duke, or squire, nor ne'er a man of honour,
Can do without a servingman.

H. 14 But, Jack, it would be worse if there was none of us,
The plough for to follow along;
There is neither lord nor king, nor any other one
Can do without the husbandman.

S. 15 Kind Sir, I must confess and I humbly protest
I will give you the uppermost hand;
Although your labour's painful it is so very gainful
I wish I were a husbandman.

H. 16 So come now let us all both great as well as small
Pray for the grain of our land
And let us whatsoever, do all our best endeavour,
To maintain the good husbandman.

(From Davies Gilbert's Ancient English Carols.)

The oldest printed version of this dialogue is in the Loyal Garland (Percy Society, vol. xxix.); the words are only slightly different from those given above, except that in the last verse, the second line runs, "Pray for the peace of old England," in allusion to the Civil Wars, from which period the collection dates. A version of the same tune is given in Sussex Songs, in which, as in almost all other versions the servingman, in the part for two voices, repeats the words of the husbandman, instead of his own. This may of course be done here, if preferred, and in any case, both voices must sing the husbandman's sentiment in the last verse. In Davies Gilbert's version, here given, the third bar from the end is in unison between the voices; in this we have taken the liberty of adopting the reading of the Sussex version. A version, set to a much later tune is sent by Mrs. Slingsby, Skipton, and there is no doubt that this dialogue in some form or other is known in many parts of the country. The tune is a variant of "I am the Duke of Norfolk."

The musical score consists of three staves. The top staff is a vocal line in treble clef with a key signature of one sharp (F#) and a 2/4 time signature. It begins with the lyrics 'berth on my breast.' The middle and bottom staves are piano accompaniment, with the middle staff in treble clef and the bottom staff in bass clef. The piano part features a mix of chords and moving lines, including some triplets and slurs.

"I ONCE loved a boy, a bonnie, bonnie boy,
I loved him, I'll vow and protest;
I loved him so well, and so very, very well,
That I built him a berth on my breast,
That I built him a berth on my breast."

'Twas up the green valley and down the green grove
Like one that was troubled in mind,
She whooped and she halloed and she played upon her pipe,
But no bonnie boy could she find,
But no bonnie boy could she find.

3.

She lookèd up high, and she lookèd down low,
The sun did shine wonderful warm;
Whom should she spy there but her bonnie, bonnie boy,
So close in another girl's arm,
So close in another girl's arm.

"I passèd him by, on him ne'er cast an eye,
Though he stretched forth his lily-white hand,
For I thought he'd been bound to love but one,
So I would not obey his command,
So I would not obey his command.

5.

"The girl that was loved of my little bonnie boy,
I am sure she is greatly to blame,
For many's the night he has robbed me of rest,
But he never shall do it again,
But he never shall do it again.

"My bonnie, bonnie boy is gone over the sea,
I fear I shan't see him again;
But were I to have him, or were I to not
I will think of him once now and then,
I will think of him once now and then."

(From Mrs. Vaisey, gardener's wife.)

Chappell, in Popular Music, refers to a similar ballad dating from Charles II.'s time, called "My bonnie Bird," or "Cupid's Trepan." The above words with very slight differences, but without the last verse, are in The New Cabinet of Love, songs sung at Vauxhall. The air shews the influence of the Dorian mode.

The musical score is written in 6/8 time and consists of a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The piano part features a rhythmic pattern of eighth and sixteenth notes, often with triplets. The vocal line is simple and follows the lyrics. The score is divided into four systems, each with a vocal staff and a piano staff. The piano staff includes a treble and bass clef. The tempo is marked 'Allegro leggiero' and the dynamic is 'mf'.

- 1 Come all you lads and lasses, together let us go
 Into some pleasant cornfield our courage for to show;
 With the reaphook and the sickle so well we clear the land,
 The farmer says, "Well done, my lads, here's liquor at your command "

 —They are such charming creatures, they make the valley ring—
 We will reap and scrape together till Phœbus do go down,
 With the good old leathern bottle and the beer that is so brown.

 She is my charming creature, I must begin to pray;
 See how she gathers it, binds it, she folds it in her arms,
 Then gives it to some waggoner to fill a farmer's barns.
- 4 Now harvest's done and ended, the corn secure from harm,
 All for to go to market, boys, we must thresh in the barn;
 Here's a health to all you farmers, likewise to all you men,
 I wish you health and happiness till harvest comes again.

Chorus.—So drink, boys, drink, and see that you do not spill;
 For if you do, you shall drink two, for 'tis our master's will.

(Words and tune from Mrs. Squarey, Downton.)

At the harvest suppers, up to some twenty years ago, while the guests were still seated at the table a labourer carrying a jug or can of beer or cider filled a horn for every two men, one on each side of the table; as they drank, this old harvest song was sung, and the chorus repeated, until the man with the beer had reached the end of the long table, involving sometimes thirty repetitions of the first verse. After this, the second verse was sung in the same manner. The words and tune occur in all parts of the country, and are in many collections. The introductory symphony gives the form of a chorus in a Gloucestershire version, sent by F. Scarlett Potter, Esq.

Come, all jolly ploughboys, come help me for to sing,
 I'll sing in the praise of the plough,
 For though we must labour from summer to spring,
 We all will be merry boys now.

We've hirèd, we've mirèd, through mire and through clay,
 No pleasure at all could we find;
 Now we'll laugh, dance and sing, and drive care away,
 No more in this world to repine.

Here's April, here's May, here's June and July,
 'Tis a pleasure to see the corn grow;
 In August we moil it, shear low, and reap high,
 And bind up our scythes for to mow.

So now we have gathered up every sheaf,
 And scrapèd up every ear;
 We'll make no more to-do, but to plough and to sow,
 And provide for the very next year.

(From Mrs. Squarey, fragment only of words and tune; remainder supplied from a Hampshire version in The Besom Maker, by Heywood Sumner, Esq.)

Compare the tune with the Sword-Dance Song, "Samson," (p. 16). The following is a Sussex tune to the same song:—

 BOTH. Two of them are lilywhite babes, Clothèd all in green oh!
 One and one is all alone, and evermore shall be so.

These three verses indicate the plan of the song, each new number being followed by the whole of those that have gone before, sung by both voices. The other numbers are as follows:—

Four are the Gospel preachers.
 Five are the flamboys all in a row.
 Six are the six bold waiters.
 Seven are the seven stars in the sky
 Eight are the Gabriel angels.
 Nine and nine of the brightest shine
 Ten are the ten commandèments.
 Eleven and eleven went to heaven.
 Twelve are the twelve apostles.

(From the Rev. W. Miles Barnes, Monkton.)

For the later numbers, only the two notes, D and E, are given. It is suggested that these should be accompanied by the two different harmonies given under Nos. 3 and 4. Before discussing the various versions of the words, and their interpretations, it will be well to give a version of words and music which is traditional in King's College, Cambridge. A variant of the same music is given by a correspondent in The Musical Herald for October, 1891, and said to have been sung by a Scotchman. In the letter a "minor tune" is referred to as belonging to a Norfolk version. This may not possibly be identical with the Dorsetshire version given above (see next page).

The first system of the musical score consists of a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line is written in a single treble clef with a key signature of one flat and a common time signature. The lyrics are: "1. I'll sing you one, oh! Green grow the rushes, oh! What is your one, oh?". The piano accompaniment is written in grand staff notation (treble and bass clefs). The tempo is marked "Allegro." and dynamic markings are "mf", "f", and "mf".

The third system of the musical score continues the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "Green grow the rushes, oh! What is your two, oh? Two, two for the li-ly-white boys". The piano accompaniment continues with chords and bass lines. Dynamic markings are "f" and "mf".

Cloth-ed all in green, oh! One and one is all a-lone, And ev-er more shall be so.

The fourth system of the musical score concludes the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The lyrics are: "Cloth-ed all in green, oh! One and one is all a-lone, And ev-er more shall be so.". The piano accompaniment continues with chords and bass lines.

The words of this version, which are known at Eton, are here reprinted from "Camp Choruses, E.C.R.V." The plan is exactly the same as that of the Dorsetshire version, except that the practice of singing it in two parts seems to have been discarded. The tune is a little more elaborate, since the same words are not always sung to the same part of the tune; e.g., in the example, "Four are the Gospel makers," on its first appearance, is chanted on what may be called the "reciting note" and afterwards when it follows "five," &c., to the final phrase.

GREEN GROW THE RUSHES, OH!

- 1 I'LL sing you one, oh!
Green grow the rushes, oh!
One and one is all alone,
And evermore shall be so
- 2 Two, two for the lilywhite boys
Clothèd all in green, oh!
- 3 Three, three for the rivals.
- 4 Four for the Gospel makers.
- 5 Five for the symbol at your door.
- 6 Six for the six proud walkers.
- 7 Seven for the seven stars in the sky.
- 8 Eight for the eight bold rainers (or rangers).
- 9 Nine for the nine bright shiners.
- 10 Ten for the ten commandments.
- 11 Eleven for the eleven that went up to heaven.
- 12 Twelve for the twelve apostles.

To treat exhaustively of the history of this song would be beyond the scope of the present book, but it is to be hoped that it will some day receive proper attention from those who are competent to discuss it. It must suffice in this place to say that in different forms it occurs in very many ancient and modern languages, from Hebrew downwards. Its purport seems to have been always a more or less theological one. The reader who is interested in the song may be referred to the following authorities:—Villemarqué, Barzas Breiz Lejean, in Revue Celtique, vol. ii., 44 ff. Sandys' Carols. An interesting series of articles appeared in Longman's Magazine for 1889, in the course of which suggestions were made as to the meaning of some of the sentences, by Dr. Jessopp and Mr. Andrew Lang. Several English versions have appeared from time to time in Notes and Queries, as for instance, in Series 4, vol. ii., p. 599; Series 4, vol. iii., p. 90 (Norfolk); Series 6, vol. i., p. 481; Series 6, vol. ii., p. 255. &c. In course of centuries, many of the sentences have degenerated into a mere meaningless jingle, from which, however, it is not impossible to reconstruct the probable original. At the Reformation, many of the more recondite allusions would naturally be forgotten, but certain numbers are identical in all Christian versions, and even in the Hebrew version, Nos. 1 and 10 have the same meaning as in the others.

- 1.—With the exception of some trifling varieties of reading, as "lies all alone," or "is left alone," all versions agree in the couplet, which quite certainly refers to God Almighty.
- 2.—In the Hebrew, the tables of the law represent this number, and in version dated 1625, it is interpreted of the two testaments. The reading, in a Cornish sailors' version, "lilywhite maids," dates from a period when the word was not confined to one sex. The allusion is undoubtedly to Christ and St. John the Baptist, but what the meaning of "clothed all in green" may be cannot be guessed. The Scotch version, "the lily and the rose, That shine baith red and green," is curious it is in the form given in R. Chambers' Popular Rhymes of Scotland.
- 3.—The curious readings of all the known versions may be divided into two families: "thrivers," "drivers," "divers," "the rivals," "rhymers," and "wisers," on the one hand, and on the other "rare O's," "rear ho!" and "arrows." It is difficult to see in any of these a corruption of any words which would bear out the interpretation almost universally given for this number, i.e., the Persons of the Trinity; an ingenious conjecture has been received, to the effect that the first of the two groups may stand for "thridings," or "thirdings," the word from which the Yorkshire "Riding" is derived. If the interpretation suggested by Mr. Laurence Whalley be correct, and the number refers to the Wise Men from the East, the first group of readings must be taken as corruptions for "wisers," which actually occurs in one version. This is confirmed by the reading "strangers," in a Cornish sailors' version.

- 4.—All Christian versions agree in the reading "Gospel makers," "writers," or "preachers." The Hebrew version of Nos. 3 and 4 gives the Patriarchs (Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob) for No. 3, and their wives (Sarah, Rebecca, Leah and Rachel) for No. 4. The curious reading "cancelled," given in Notes and Queries, Series 6, vol. ii., p. 255, may indicate "Evangelists."
- 5.—With several different combinations, the commonest readings are: "the symbol at your door," "at your feet," or "at your call;" "the simple (i.e. sinew) in my bone," "the thimble in the bowl," "tumblers on a board," and the Scotch "hymnlers o' my bower," all of which point to one original. It is difficult to resist hazarding the guess that the first of these is actually correct, and refers to the sign of the pentacle, or pentagram, the five-pointed figure drawn with one line, thus:— and very commonly inscribed on the threshold to keep away the evil one. In Goethe's Faust, there is an allusion to this sign as the "Drudenfuss," or "Pentagramma," which prevents Mephistopheles from crossing the threshold. The reading of the Dorsetshire version, "flamboys all in a row," or "under the brow," may possibly be a very corrupt version of the same. But "the ferrymen in the boat," given in a Cornish version, whether or not followed by the words "and one of them a stranger," can hardly be referred to the same origin. Mr. Lang interprets the number of the five wounds of Christ, but it is difficult to see how this solution is arrived at. "Nimble fingers" is almost certainly a late restoration of an imaginary original.

- 6.—In the case of this number the solution is fairly certain, though the readings differ widely. "Bold," "cheerful," "proud," or "charming," "waiters," "waters," or "walkers," are the most common, and there can be little doubt that the reference is to the six water-pots used in the miracle of Cana of Galilee. "Bowls," "Pots," or "Jars," of "Water," and "Charmed Water" are two different originals which amply account for the readings given above. Mr. Lang sees an allusion here to the "Tearful Mater," or the "Mater Dolorosa," but why under the number six? The guesses, "ages of the world," "days of labour," and "Seraphim with six wings," are of less authority, while the curious "provokers," "virtuous horses," and "lamps were burning bright," given in the three Notes and Queries versions, must be left in their obscurity.
- 7.—The "seven stars in the sky" are of course the group in Ursa Major, called Charles's Wain. The versions are almost all in agreement here, but the "seven liberal arts" appear in the 1625 version, "days of the week" in the Hebrew, and "works of mercy" in Notes and Queries, Series 6, vol. ii., 255. It is only wonderful that a number of such varied symbolism as this should not have suggested more varieties of reading.
- 8.—"Bold rainers," or "rangers," "bright shiners," "archangels," and the very odd "brown striped walkers," plainly refer to angels, though the number is not very suggestive. Why the number of archangels should have been doubled, it is not easy to see. The 1625 version has a reference to the number of persons saved in the ark, the Hebrew refers it to the days preceding circumcision, and one or two versions have "Gospel blessings," referring to the Beatitudes.
- 9.—"Bright shiners," and "gable rangers" are the commonest readings, but these are almost as often found for eight as for nine. With regard to the latter, Dr. Jessopp's ingenious guess that the "Angel Gabriel" was referred to here is confirmed by the Dorsetshire version given above, under eight. Two of the Notes and Queries versions give "tentmakers," and "kings of Lunnery" for this number, and the third reads, with that of 1625, "maiden Muses." Mr. Lang follows the Hebrew version in interpreting it of the months preceding birth. A Cornish version gives "the moonlight bright and clear."
- 10.—All versions agree in this reading.
- 11.—The readings are almost all in agreement, and the reference is undoubtedly to the apostles without Judas Iscariot. The "eleven stars" seen by Joseph provide the Hebrew version with an interpretation for this number, and the eleven thousand virgins appear in one of the French versions. The Scotch version has "eleven maidens in a dance," and a Berkshire version gives "Belsher's (i.e. Belshazzar's) horses."
- 12.—Here again all versions agree, except of course the Hebrew, which gives the tribes of Israel, as might be expected.

The Somersetshire version given in Notes and Queries, Series 4, vol. ii., 599, &c., is deliberately made into nonsense for the sake of rhyming with the names of the numbers. The editors will be grateful for any version not hitherto recorded, or for suggestions as to the interpretation of the more corrupt readings.

I'm a man that's in trouble and sorrow,
That once was lighthearted and gay;
Not a coin in this world can I borrow,
Since my own I have squandered away.
I once wronged my father and mother,
Till they turned me out from their door,
To beg, starve, or die, in the gutter to lie,
And ne'er enter their dwellings no more.
Cho. I'm a man that's done wrong to my parents,
And daily I wander about,
To earn a small mite for my lodging at night,
God help me, for now I'm cast out!

Then my father will say when he meets me,
"You beggar, you still are at large,
And mind, Sir, that you don't come near me,
Or by heaven I will give you in charge."
My mother, poor thing, 's broken-hearted,
To meet me she oftentimes will try,
For to give me a crown with her head hanging down
And a tear rolling out of her eye.
Cho. I'm a man that's done wrong, &c.

3.

I'd a sister that married a squire,
She'll ne'er look, nor speak unto me;
Because in this world she's much higher
And rides in her carriage so free.
Then the girl that I once loved so dearly,
Is dying broken-hearted, they say,
And there on her bed she is lying, near dead,
And now for her outcast doth pray.
Cho. I'm a man that's done wrong, &c.

Kind friends, now from me take a warning,
From what I have just said to you;
And I hope in my dress you won't scorn me,
For you don't know what you may come to;
And I try to be honest and upright,
And do all the good that I can,
And I try all I know to get on in this world,
And prove to my friends I'm a man.
Cho. I'm a man that's done wrong to my parents,
And daily I wander about,
To earn a small mite for my lodging at night,
God help me, for now I'm cast out.

(Words and tune from H. Strachey, Esq.)

The tune was heard whistled by a labourer at Shillingham, Dorsetshire, in 1889, and was afterwards taken down from a collier at Bishop Sutton, Somerset. "Come down, then, and open the door, love" is often sung to this tune in both counties, but the words of this song have not been procurable. Compare the tune with "Old Rosin the Beau" in Barrett's English Folk Songs, the editor of which claims that it is a modification of an older song, and that Whyte Melville's "Wrap me up in my old stable jacket" is an adaptation of a more modern form. Compare also "The Old Farmer" and "The Gallant Hussar" in the same collection, also "Adam and Eve" in Baring Gould's Songs of the West, and "Green Mossy Banks of the Lea," a song well known to the oldest singers in Sussex and Surrey. J. Markordt, in his ballad opera of Tom Thumb, has a similar air. "In hurry post-haste for the license." The F sharp in the above tune is sometimes sung natural throughout, which is probably right.

The image shows a musical score for the song 'Bristol City'. It consists of two systems of music. The first system has a vocal line on a treble clef staff and a piano accompaniment on grand staff (treble and bass clefs). The lyrics 'all the sorts of a Col - in, why a sail - or for me !' are written below the vocal line. The second system also has a vocal line and piano accompaniment. The piano part includes dynamic markings: mf, f, and p. The key signature is one sharp (F#) and the time signature is 2/4.

- 1 As I walked through Bristol City, I heard a fair maid sing,
In behalf of her sailor, her country, and her king;
And oh, she sang so sweetly, and so sweetly sang she;
"Oh! of all the sorts of a Colin, why a sailor for me!"
- 2 "You may know my jolly sailor, wheresomede'er he does rove,
He's so neat in his behaviour, and so true to his love;
His teeth are white as ivory, his cheeks like the damask rose,
So you may know my jolly sailor, wheresomede'er he goes.
- 3 "For your sailors are men of honour, and men of courage bold,
If they go to fight their enemies they are not to be controuled;
If they get on board a man of war where the thundering cannons roar,
They venture their lives for gold, and spend it freely on shore."

[Sailor's Answer.]

- 4 "Come, come, my pretty Polly, come sit thee down by me,
For now my pretty Molly, you and I will agree;
For my Molly is an angel, all dressed in willow green,
And she be like any lady, or a beautiful queen.
- 5 "Pretty Poll has got a colour like the roses in June,
And she plays upon the hipsicols a melodious fine tune;
Her lips are red as rubies, her eyes as black as sloes,
So you may know my pretty Polly wheresomede'er she goes.
- 6 "I'll build my love a castle on yonder high ground,
Where no lord nor yet a monarch can e'er pull it down;
For the King he can but love his Queen, and my dear I can do the same;
And you shall be my shepherdess, and I'll be your dear swain."

(From "A Favorite Ballad, sung by Mr. Huttley, at the Convivial Societys of Bath and Bristol." Printed by Preston and Sons, London.

No excuse need be offered for including this pretty tune, though the song is, strictly speaking, outside the scope of the collection, since it is not in any sense traditional.

The first system of music features a vocal line in the upper staff and a piano accompaniment in the lower staff. The key signature has one flat (B-flat) and the time signature is 6/8. The vocal line begins with a whole rest, followed by a half note G4, a quarter note A4, and a quarter note B4. The piano accompaniment starts with a half note G3, a half note F3, and a half note E3. The tempo is marked 'Moderato.' and there is a 'Ped.' (pedal) marking. An asterisk is placed above the piano accompaniment in the third measure.

The second system continues the vocal line and piano accompaniment. The vocal line has the lyrics 'outlandish knight came from the north lands, And he came a woo-ing to me; He'. The piano accompaniment continues with a similar rhythmic pattern. A 'Ped.' marking is present at the beginning of the piano part.

- 1 An outlandish knight came from the north lands,
And he came a wooing to me ;
He told me he'd take me unto the north lands,
And there he would marry me.
"Go get me some of thy father's gold,
And some of thy mother's fee,
And two of the best nags out of the stable,
Where there stand thirty and three."
- 2 She got him some of her father's gold,
And some of her mother's fee ;
And two of the best nags out of the stable,
Where there stood thirty and three.
She mounted her on the milk-white steed
And he on the dapple grey ;
And they both rode till they came unto the salt
sea,
Just two hours before it was day.
- 3 "Alight, alight, my pretty lady,
And deliver it all unto me,
For it's six pretty maidens I have drowned here,
And the seventh thou shalt be.
Pull off, pull off thy holland smock,
And deliver it up to me,
For I deem that it looks too fine and too gay
For to rot all in the salt sea.
- 4 "Pull off, pull off thy milkwhite stays,
And deliver them up to me,
For it's six pretty maidens I have drowned here,
And the seventh thou shalt be.
Pull off, pull off thy silken hose,
And deliver them up to me,
For I deem that they look too fine and too gay
For to rot all in the salt sea."
- 5 "If I have to pull off my holland smock,
Pray turn thy back upon me,
For it is not meet that a ruffian should
A naked woman see."
- He turned his back upon her, oh !
And bitterly she did weep,
She caught him round the middle so neat,
And tumbled him into the deep.
- 6 He dippèd high, he dippèd low,
And dippèd to the side,
"Lay hold of my hand, my pretty lady,
And you shall be my bride."
"Lie there, lie there, thou false-hearted man
Lie there instead of me,
For it's six pretty maidens you have drowned
here,
But the seventh has drownèd thee."
- 7 She mounted on her milk-white steed,
And led the dapple grey ;
She rode till she came to her own father's hall
Three hours before it was day.
The parrot being in the window so high,
Hearing the lady did say :
"I'm afraid that some ruffian has led you astray,
That you've tarried so long away."
- 8 "Don't prittle or pattle, my pretty parrot,
Nor tell no tales of me ;
Thy cage shall be made of the glittering gold,
And thy perch of the best ivorie."
The King being in his chamber so high,
And hearing the parrot did say ;
"What ails you, what ails you, my pretty parrot,
That you prattle so long before day?"
- 9 "It's no laughing matter," the parrot did say,
"But so loudly I call unto thee,
For the cats have got into the window so high,
And I'm afraid they will have me :"
"Well turned, well turned, my pretty parrot,
Well turnèd up for me ;
Thy cage shall be made of the glittering gold,
And thy perch of the best ivorie."

(From Heywood Sumner, Esq. Some of the words supplied from "North-Country Lore and Legend.")

For an account of all the tunes set to this fine ballad, see Kidson's Traditional Tunes, p. 27. A tune is also given in Shropshire Folk Lore, p. 652. The ballad, in some form or other, is known all over the north of Europe. The term "outlandish" was specifically used of the inhabitants of the debateable land between England and Scotland.

to my love When he comes back from sea, For I

The musical score consists of two systems. The first system features a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line begins with the lyrics "love my love, and I love my love, . . . Be-cause my love loves" and includes markings for rall. and a tempo. with a triplet of eighth notes. The piano accompaniment also includes rall. and a tempo. markings. The second system continues the vocal line with "me. 2. I" and includes a Last verse. section. The piano accompaniment for the second system includes a dim. e rall. pp marking.

- 1 I'LL weave my love a garland,
It shall be dressed so fine;
I'll set it round with roses,
With lilies, pinks, and thyme.
And I'll present it to my love
When he comes back from sea,
For I love my love, and I love my love,
Because my love loves me.
- 2 I wish I were an arrow,
That sped into the air,
To seek him as a sparrow,
And, if he was not there
Then quickly I'd become a fish,
To search the raging sea,
For I love my love, and I love my love,
Because my love loves me.
- 3 I would I were a reaper
I'd seek him in the corn,
I would I were a keeper,
I'd hunt him with my horn.
I'd blow a blast, when found at last,
Beneath the greenwood tree,
For I love my love, and I love my love,
Because my love loves me.

(Words from Songs of the West. The tune communicated by the Rev. S. Baring Gould.)

Another tune is given in Songs of the West, where the words have a chorus of "Ri-fol-de-rol," &c. Two verses occur in "Colin and Phoebe's Garland" (British Museum 11621, c. 5).

The piano introduction consists of two staves. The right hand plays a series of chords in a C major key signature, starting with a half note G4, followed by a quarter note A4, then a half note B4, and a quarter note C5. The left hand plays a simple bass line with quarter notes: G2, A2, B2, C3, D3, E3, F3, G3, A3, B3, C4, D4, E4, F4, G4.

(From the Rev. J. Shearme.)

* Possibly in the original this line ran " And forced to lose his head."

Mr. Kidson writes: This is evidently originally a nursery or nonsense rhyme, with what appears to be an addition or alteration as early as Cromwell's time. See Hone's Every Day Book, vol. i., p. 718, for a custom connected with the subject of this song, kept up as late as 1831 at Tiverton, Devon. on Restoration Day, May 29. In Peter Buchan's Ancient Ballads of the North of Scotland (1828), is a nonsense song, one verse of which is:—

I bought a wife in Edinburgh
 For ae bawbie,
 I got a farthing in again
 To buy tobacco wi'.
 We'll bore in Aaron's nose a hole
 And put therein a ring,
 And straight we'll lead him to and fro;
 Yea, lead him in a string.

ALL on Spurn Point a vessel lay,
 All on Spurn Point, ay! all the day,
 We launched the lifeboat true and brave,
 Expecting every soul to save.
 "I want no help," the captain cried,
 "She will come off with flowing tide."
 (From H. M. Bower, Esq.)

This fragment was taken down by Mr. Bower from a Whitby fisherman, in December, 1891. The singer has tried to get hold of more words, but without success. It was an old saying in Whitby that at last the ship broke up. The captain was picked up at night; he lived to say that but for his refusal of help, all hands might have been saved, and then died. A comparison of this tune with "Sweet William" (p. 74) will give a remarkable illustration of the curious transformations which airs undergo in transmission.

My Johnny was a shoemaker, but now he's gone to sea;
With nasty pitch to soil his hands
And sail upon the stormy sea,
My Johnny was a shoemaker.
- 2 His jacket was a deep sky blue, and curly was his hair,
His jacket was a deep sky blue, it was I do declare;
To reef the topsail now he's gone,
And sail across the stormy sea,
My Johnny was a shoemaker.
- 3 And he will be a captain by and bye, with a brave and gallant crew,
And he will be a captain by and bye, with a sword and a spyglass too,
And when he is a captain bold,
He'll come back to marry me,
My Johnny was a shoemaker.

(From The Besom Maker, by Mr. Heywood Sumner.)

In the printed version, the A appears as A sharp in bars 4, 8, and 14; it has been altered to A natural here, as it is possibly the older form of the tune

- 1 Now listen, you landsmen unto me, to tell you the truth I'm bound,
 What happened to me by going to sea, and the wonders that I found:
 Shipwrecked I was once off Perouse and cast upon the shore,
 So then I did resolve to roam, the country to explore.
Chorus.—Tomy rit fal lal li bollem tit! tomy rit fal lal li dee!
 Tomy rit fal lal li bollem tit! tomy rit fal lal li dee!
- 2 'Twas far I had not scouted out when close alongside the ocean
 I saw something move which at first I thought was all the world in motion;
 But steering up close alongside I found 'twas a crocodile,
 And from his nose to the tip of his tail he measured five hundred mile.
Chorus.—Tomy rit fal lal li bollem tit, &c.
- 3 'Twas a crocodile, I plainly could see he was not of a common race,
 For I was obliged to climb a high tree before I could see his face.
 And when he lifted up his jaw, though perhaps you may think 'tis a lie,
 He reached above the clouds for miles three score, and almost touched the sky.
Chorus.—Tomy rit fal lal li bollem tit, &c.
- 4 While up aloft the wind was high, it blew a gale from the south,
 I lost my hold and away did fly right into the crocodile's mouth.
 He quickly closed his jaws on me, and thought he got a victim,
 But I ran down his throat, d'ye see? and that's the way I tricked him.
Chorus.—Tomy rit fal lal li bollem tit, &c.
- 5 I travelled on for a month or two, till I got into his maw,
 Where I found of rum-kegs not a few, and a thousand fat bullocks in store.
 Of life I banished all my care, for of grub I was not stinted,
 And in this crocodile I lived ten years and very well contented.
Chorus.—Tomy rit fal lal li bollem tit, &c.
- 6 This crocodile being very old, one day, alas, he died,
 He was ten long years a-getting cold, he was so long and wide.
 His skin was eight miles thick, I'm sure, or very near about,
 For I was full ten years or more a-cutting my way out.
Chorus.—Tomy rit fal lal li bollem tit, &c.
- 7 And now I am once more got on earth I've vowed no more to roam,
 In a ship that passed I got a berth, and now I'm safe at home.
 And if my story you should doubt, should you ever travel the Nile,
 It's ten to one you'll find the shell of the wonderful crocodile.
Chorus.—Tomy rit fal lal li bollem tit, &c.

The words of this song are to be found on ballad sheets. This version, words and tune, was sung by an old workman (since dead) in 1891, at Buckland Newton, Dorsetshire.
